WHAT is the matter with our children? Not much, but a great deal is the matter with some parents.

The police are hunting for a little girl, 10 years old, invited to go to a party by a plausible man, 38 years old, last Sunday. The child did not know the man, the parents did not know him. But the parents said, "Certainly." Off she went in the stranger's car, and that's the last seen of her.

Every public school should have an annex with the sign over the door:

"Primary common sense for parents."

SECRETARY HOOVER is getting additional delegates rapidly, numerous contests being settled in his favor. It looks like "Smith and Hoover, New York and California, the Atlantic versus the Pacific."

OTHER news tells that Mrs. Charles H. Sabin and Mrs. Medill McCormick "are burning up the wires from coast to coast fighting Hoover."

Mrs. McCormick is the daughter of the powerful Mark Hanna, and Mrs. Sabin is the daughter of Paul Morton, once a considerable financier and wife of the head of one of the biggest New York trust companies.

SECRETARY HOOVER, always philosophical, knows that souvent femme varie, which means that women occasionally change their minds.

He may soon be appointing these two ladies on important committees. And they will say, "He's a perfect old dear."

MISS O'BRIEN, adventurous young explorer, returns to St. Paul, Minn., disappointed in the African pygmies. She shot all kinds of game, endured all kinds of hardship and says Africa is all right for a woman, but a little too rough for a man.

"The pygmies are darling little creatures," says she, "but I had to teach them to act wild." She wanted moving pictures of them.

Many American girls could teach any pygmy to act wild, and do so.

FIJI ISLANDERS, bushy-haired, active, gave a warm welcome to the monoplane Southern Cross, landing at Suva.

Those Fijians once had an annoying habit of eating white men. This time they only cheered them.

THE fliers have beaten all records, including Lindbergh's long distance flight over water. It is 5,538 miles of ocean from Oakland, Cal., to Suva, Fiji Islands, via Hawaii.

THE next hop, 1,700 miles, will take the fliers to Brisbane, Australia, on the way to Sydney. The world is really flying.

THE 250 Fiji Islands, about 80 of them inhabited, belong to old grandmother Britannia. She rarely overlooks anything.

WHEN young people that now read this column get their around-the-world flying machines they may find chances to grow up with the country on some of those uninhabited, unexplored Fiji Islands.

THE stock market was happier yesterday. Things that had gone down went up. You notice that the strongest stocks often suffer most in a sudden slump for a simple reason.

The greater the number of ignorant speculators in a stock, the greater the hurry to throw the stock overboard in a panic. When little Lambs throw good stocks the Big Fellows stand by and let them fall, always waiting for bargains.

THOUSANDS of small merchants struggling for a living, or moderately prosperous, will read with no great pleasure about constantly increasing chain-store sales. For May the increase was as high as 51.5 per cent.

It is a big problem for the little man. But sympathy means nothing. Only strong combination will meet that kind of competition.

SILESIA is Poland's richest province, with 1,200,000 people that work hard. It has coal, iron, lead, zinc. It is second to this country in zinc production.

And bonds of Silesia OUGHT to be good. Why does Silesia pay 7.94 per cent to borrow money? Why does Silesia have to sell a $1,000 bond for $892?

THE answer to that question may some day disturb those that own the bonds.

Bolshevistic Russia is not far from Poland, and some of Wall Street's boy bankers know what Russia does to bond buyers.

OUR British friends have assured us that we had too much gold in America.

"It wasn't healthy, financially speaking."

We are getting healthier.

Today New York's National City Bank sends $10,000,000 in gold to London. Since last September Uncle Sam has got rid of $462,000,000 in gold. Rather puzzling, except to those that understand finance, and completely puzzling to them.

PACIFIC PILOT'S STORY PAINTS FLIGHT FEARS

The Sun-Telegraph today prints the first detailed story of the greatest air adventure ever undertaken. It is the first-hand account of how four men aboard the monoplane Southern Cross fought their way from the Hawaiian Islands to the Fijis, over 3,144 miles of sea, written by C. T. P. Ulm, co-pilot, who shared the perils and triumphs of the struggle and recorded them in his log book.

Co-Pilot and Organizer of the American-Australian Flight.

SUVA, June 6.—Pilot's log of flight and diary of Southern Cross trans-Pacific flight:

Arrived Kauai 6 p. m., June 2. Immediately inspected the Barking Sands runway. Same much better than anticipated. Then commenced fuelling plane and left same to Army mechanicians who flew over with Lowell Smith. Then Martin Jensen flew his Aloha, making three trans-Pacific flight planes at the Barking Sands.

Smith and self have hour's conference, making decisions covering all possible eventualities for coming longest flight and decide to discard the rubber life raft so kindly loaned by the United States Navy. Decide 1,300 gallons of fuel will be sufficient, and to fly at under 1,000 feet to conserve same, as previous consumption was just over 35 gallons per hour. Also decide to instruct Lyon to set course for a point 100 miles south of Honolulu on the course to Suva and there pick up radio beacon.

Then had first shave since leaving Oakland, Cal. Hot bath and dinner at Mr. Faye's, as his guest, and to bed.

Army, Navy Helps

It has been difficult to keep to my set schedule to leave Kauai tomorrow, but all set now. Innumerable delays and annoyances crop up, but Army and Navy co-operate

Won't Fight Separation

MRS. J. S. HARTJE

John Scott Hartje will not contest his wife's action for divorce, he said today. Mrs. Hartje, shown above with the couple's 4-year-old son, John Scott Hartje, Jr., has filed charges of desertion in Chancery Court, Atlantic City, and notice has been served on the husband by publication. Mr. Hartje denies that he deserted his wife, saying "it was the other way around." She stated in her petition that she is willing to waive all claims for alimony if permitted to resume her maiden name. The Hartjes were married in Atlantic City in January, 1922, but have been separated for about two and a half years.

ALL SET TO GO, PILOT SAYS

International News Service.

TREPASSEY BAY, Newfoundland, June 6.—Fueling of the Fokker monoplane Friendship, in which Miss Amelia Earhart, of Boston, hopes to fly the Atlantic, was completed soon after dawn today. Pilot Wilmer Stultz and Mechanic Louis Gordon put the finishing touches on the big red and gold plane, inspected the motors, the wing supports, the fuselage and the landing gear and then announced:

"We are all set to start."

Weather conditions were unfavorable early in the day, but the three fliers were hopeful that they would improve enough to permit a take-off either this evening or tomorrow morning.

Gordon has pronounced the plane in perfect condition for its hazardous undertaking. Just before the plane was refuelled he repaired a slight leak in one of the oil tanks.

Although reticent about their plans, the fliers appear brimful of confidence in their venture. They have been planning the flight for months and have left no stone unturned to insure its successful termination.

It is believed they will follow the ship lanes across to Europe. The Friendship is equipped with pontoons so that even if it is forced down on the ocean, it will be able to keep afloat for some time until aid arrives.

Stultz will be relieved at the controls by both Miss Earhart and Gordon. He will also do the navigating and operate the plane's radio apparatus.

The exact destination of the fliers has not been revealed. It is believed they plan to land at Southampton or at some other English port affording an open landing space.

THAW KEPT OUT OF ENGLAND

International News Service.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., June 6.—Harry K. Thaw, of Pittsburgh, who arrived here from New York on the liner Aquitania, was barred by the immigration authorities and not allowed to land on British soil.

Immigration authorities in Southampton refused to explain the reasons for their decision. But a clause in the alien restriction act bars anyone convicted of an extraditable crime.

It was recalled here that American authorities for a time considered barring Countess Cathcart from the United States, though she was accused of no crime, because they had regarded her elopment with the also-married Earl of Craven as evidence of "moral turpitude."

DETAINED ON SHIP

Thaw was detained aboard the Aquitania, on which he arrived. It was understood he would be kept aboard and would be obliged to return to the United States when the Aquitania sails on Saturday.

Thaw had announced his intention of remaining in England for about three days and then proceeding to the continent by airplane.

It was understood he would not even be permitted to return to France, where he could have debarked when the Aquitania touched there.

RUM PROBE REFUSES TO CALL WALSH

Neither Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh nor Magistrate A. D. Brandon of Morals Court will be called to testify before the Federal grand jury now probing the liquor ring.

Assistant Attorney Ralph Smith discussing the request of seven ministers that the city officials be called, today said he couldn't see the necessity for their testimony. Both Walsh and Brandon had recently issued statements asserting that they believed the prohibition law is a failure.

ACTION SOON

All testimony in the probe is expected to be completed by Friday night. If it is possible, the grand jury will make its return on Saturday. Five stenographers are kept busy transcribing testimony, taken in 12-hour sessions held daily. Stenographers work until 2 o'clock each morning to complete their day's work.

The clergymen asking that Walsh and Brandon be called did not represent any group of organization, but talked only as individuals. Their names were not revealed by government attorneys who talked with them.

Ninety persons were heard during the first two sessions yesterday and, when the jurors gathered again at 6 o'clock, there were 40 more witnesses waiting to be called. The new witnesses were summoned from the North Side and South Side, among them being officers of four clubs. The secretaries of the clubs were asked to show cancelled checks for the years 1926, 27, and 28. They were ordered to return again today with additional checks.

Rum Racketeers Decorate With U.S. Pay

Men about town report that the federal booze probe has boomed, more or less, the picture-frame business. As the story goes, many of the bartenders, bootleggers and racketeers presented with $6 checks for testifying before the federal grand jury, instead of cashing their checks, have hung them in neat frames suitable for the walls of their speakeasies. If the story is true, it means that denizens of the booze belt are willing to sacrifice $6 per member in the cause of art.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., June 6.—(AP.)—Shot from ambush while attempting to arrest five liquor runners on Elizabeth pike, 20 miles east of here, O. B. Summers, one of West Virginia's eight deputy prohibition commissioners, under Administrator Pennington at Pittsburgh, today was believe to be near death at St. Joseph's Hospital.

W. C. Burdett, a constable, said that residents refused to assist when they learned Summers was a prohibition agent. Burdett had to leave Summers lying in the road while he telephoned Parkersburg police for aid. The liquor runners escaped.

BRIDGE SLOW; FIRM FAILS

"The prolonged closing" of the Sixth Street Bridge ruined its business, the Beckert Seed Company charged in asking for the appointment of a receiver in Common Pleas Court today.

The company, one of the city's largest in the seed business, is located off the north end of the bridge at 101-3 Federal street. Liabilities were listed at $113,279, assets at $125,055. Judge Ambrose B. Reid named H. M. Oliver temporary receiver and set June 18 as the date for hearing.

Numerous complaints over the delay in erecting the new bridge have been heard from merchants on both sides of the river. The bridge was closed January 3, 1927, and is not expected to be completed before October, this year.

WINS $1,310,000 ON DERBY

LONDON, June 6.—(AP.)—Somebody somewhere is holding a slip of paper worth £262,000 (approximately $1,310,000) by reason of Felstead's derby victory. This is the first prize in the Calcutta sweepstakes. The holder of the ticket has not yet been discovered.

Flamingo's number—second in the derby—held by a Calcutta syndicate, will pay £131,000 ($655,000) while £65,000 ($325,000 will go into the pocket of the person holding the ticket on Black Watch, who finished third in the classic. This lucky one as yet is nameless.

John Flexman, of London, who drew Fairway, the favorite, in the stock exchange sweep, is not downhearted. He sold half his ticket, which cost him £1 for £16,000, and one-eighth of the ticket for £4,000 before the big race. With this £20,000, in addition to the few "quid" he gets from Fairway's participation, Flexman seemed quite content this afternoon.

"No," he said, "I am not going to Monte Carlo."

DISCREDIT NOBILE SOS

International News Service.

MOSCOW, June 6.—The fate of the Nobile polar expedition was plunged into deeper doubt and the whole question of Russian relief was thrown into confusion today by developments which indicated that the recent fragmentary radiograms which were supposed to have come from the Italia, did not emanate from that source at all.

After studying the alleged "SOS" wireless calls and the circumstances attending them, experts attached to the communications branch of the Soviet have begun to discredit them. The government relief committee which was formed to aid the search for Gen. Nobile and his 17 missing companions said today they hesitated to make any move until they had more satisfactory data to work on.

Whether this decision will halt the Russian expedition to Franz Josef Land was not certain.

Belief is growing that the fragmentary messages which were supposed to have come from the Italia were from amateur senders, who probably mistook other radiograms as calls from the lost balloon.

PLAN RESCUE EXPEDITION

The Soviet ice-cutter Maligin, carrying an airplane and a searching expedition headed by Prof. Viza, a famous Arctic authority, is expected to leave Archangel, Russia, Saturday to scour Franz Josef Land for Gen. Nobile.

The expedition will establish an airplane base in the northwest section of Nova Zembla. The plane will reconnoiter from the base in an attempt to verify messages picked up by Russian radio stations, which stated that Nobile had made a safe landing on Franz Josef Land.

Prof. Viza is thoroughly familiar with the geography and topography of Franz Joseph Land. He said today that Nobile knows of the existence of a cache of food supplies at Flora Cape, Franz Joseph Land, and probably would locate it if his men lacked food.

Rescue officials are convinced of the authenticity of several messages, apparently from Nobile, picked up by Soviet radio stations but they are puzzled by the fact that Nobile did not give his exact latitude and longitude in any of them. However, they believed he was prevented from doing so by poor transmission.

A soviet trawler plying off the Murmansk coast of Archangel province reported intercepting a radio message from an amateur at Obdorsk, which stated definitely that Nobile had asked aid by wireless. The message added that Nobile's radio had said he had landed on Franz Joseph Land.

Other Soviet stations reported hearing the Italia call three separate stations—an American station and two Russian stations.

All Russian radio stations are sending out messages on various wave lengths stating that aid is being sent. It is hoped that Nobile may pick up the messages.

FLIER'S SEARCH FAILS

OSLO, Norway, June 6.—(AP.)—Advices from Spitzbergen today said that Lieut. Luetzon Holm, Norwegian flier, had made one flight in search of the missing dirigible Italia and found nothing. Holm, the first to try to find the Italia from the air, operated from the sealing ship Hobby, now off northern coast of West Spitzbergen.

HIT-RUN KILLER TO WORKHOUSE

Two years in the workhouse, the maximum sentence, was imposed yesterday in Criminal Court on Frank V. Daczkowski, garage proprietor of McKeesport, convicted "hit and run" killer.

"This is a serious crime and it is our duty to protect the public on the highways from reckless drivers," declared Judge James H. Gray, passing sentence after refusing a new trial.

The defendant was found guilty of involutary manslaughter March 8, for the death of Harry G. Young, Jr., 11, who suffered a fractured skull when struck near his home on the Lincoln highway, North Versailles township, near East McKeesport, October 21, 1926. With his brother Hugh, 10, Harry was going to the store for bread. The motorist fled without stopping to aid the fatally injured lad.

Sergeant Vncent F. Bunch of the State police traced the crime to Daczowski through a long search for the purchaser of a new door handle. This replaced the handle which struck the boy on the head and wos torn from the car.

UNIONTOWN, June 6.—Frank Monoghan, reputed to be one of Uniontown's wealthiest citizens, was fined $500 yesterday and sentenced to two years in the Allegheny County Workhouse, following his conviction as a "hit-and-run" auto killer. He was committed at once to the Fayette county jail.

The charge grew out of a collision between Monoghan's machine and that of George Titlow, the latter a deputy sheriff, later arrested Monaghan after chasing him down a mountain side and using his handybilly. In the machine at the time of the wreck was Miss Mildred Shomansky, the "Miss Uniontown" of the 1925 Atlantic City beauty pageant, who testified she was Monaghan's housekeeper.

3 WOUNDED IN DETROIT HOLDUP

DETROIT, June 6.—(INS.)—One policeman is dying, another was shot in the foot, and one bandit is believed to have been wounded when six men armed with revolvers and sawed-off shotguns held up the cashier of the Detroit News today and escaped with a payroll estimated by the News at $10,000. Police first announced the bandits had obtained loot estimated at $50,000, but a check-up revealed $10,000 to be correct, according to the News.

The dying policeman is George Harsted, 28, a traffic officer stationed at Second and Lafayette boulevard. The other officer is Guyot Craig, 29.

Craig said he shot one of the bandits as they started to re-enter their automobile. The bandit fell and was picked up by his comrades and thrown into their car. The bandits kept up a steady barrage of shots all the while.

The sextet parked their car—a blue machine—in front of the main entrance to the News Building on Lafayette boulevard. One man stood guard on the curb, one remained in the machine and four—all young and well-dressed—went into the building, carrying their weapons under their coats.

They strolled calmly to the second floor, walked back to the cashier's cage, which is completely surrounded by desks, and isolated in the center of the spacious general business office.

They fired twice into the ceiling then commanded the 100 employes to stand up and hold up their hands. All complied.

Two of the thugs scaled the 10-foot wire wall of the cage and dropped inside. The other two kept their guns trained on the employes. The cashier, George Nichol, was covered and prevented from reaching his weapon. The pair picked up satchels containing the payroll envelopes, and climbed back over the cage wall.

At the bottom of the stairway, the four opened fire across the foyer, clearing the way to the front door. There were a dozen or more persons in the lobby, but none was in range of the bullets.

Lost Vet Found in River

The mysterious disappearance of Sylvester J. Schaub, 28, World War veteran, of 420 Brownsville road, for whom an intensive search had been conducted for nearly two months, was partly cleared today when a body found floating last night in the Ohio River at Glenfield was identified at the morgue as that of the missing man.

Schaub, chauffeur for his grandfather, John D. Schaub, undertaker at the Brownsville road address, left home April 12, after complaining of severe headaches, according to his uncle, Elmer P. Schaub, and had not been seen since. The young man had been married only a month prior to his disappearance.

Andrew Badich and A. I. Phillips, of Glenfield, rowing a skiff in midriver saw Schaub's body floating down stream. They towed it ashore and notified the coroner.

There were no marks of violence on the body, the condition of which indicated it had been in the water a long time.

SOUTHERN CROSS TO HOP TONIGHT

Where Fliers Fret

CHINESE CABINET MINISTERS FLEE

THE DAILY PICTORIAL — THE SUN-TELEGRAPH — GENERAL NEWS SECTION
WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6, 1928

LOCAL

Two years ago, J. E. Foss, 1112 Keenan Building, traveled through the South Seas as a motion picture cameraman and today, while the crew of the Southern Cross rests on Suva, one of the Fijians, Foss has probably one of the best available sets of "still" pictures in the country.

TROPICAL

In this hotel, the Grand Pacific, the only one on the island, the fliers will be entertained during their stay. Here is also a usual scene of the island's tropical beauty.

FIELD

Here are shown the fliers' first view of Suva as they ended their flight from Hawaii: Albert Park, the field on which they landed; King Tatuipope in his throne room; a typical native welcome to a visitor, and the last remaining native, 112, who has eaten "long pig," or the flesh of man.

CITY

The city of Suva is the largest village on the island and the capital of the island. Here is a view in its business district.

4 FLIERS WILL HOP TONIGHT

SUVA, Fiji, June 6.—(AP.)—The Southern Cross will hop off at 3 p. m. tomorrow (11 o'clock tonight Pittsburgh time) from the beach at Naselai, 16 miles from here on its 1,750-mile flight to Brisbane, Australia, Flight Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith announced late tonight.

Contrary to earlier reports, James Warner and Harry Lyon, the Americans who acted as radio operator and navigator respectively on the first two legs of the flight, will accompany Smith and his co-pilot, Charles T. P. Ulm, to Australia, it was announced here.

Between Suva and Brisbane, on the northeast coast of Australia, lies 1,795 miles of ocean, which the Southern Cross must traverse on the third lap of its 7,800-mile course.

The course is approximately west by southwest, with a few markers strewn along it. The first of these will be seen after the huge monoplane has covered about one-third of its flight. Some 600 miles from Suva the fliers should sight the new Hebrides Islands.

As Hebrides fade out from view, they will glimpse land in the Loyalty group of islands. If visibility is good, they may be able to pick up two small reefs far to the south.

Then, at precisely the half-way mark, the big Fokker will pass over New Caledonia, largest of the markers along the course. In case of necessity, a landing might be made on this island.

From New Caledonia to the continent of Australia is open water—another 900 miles of it.

The area to be traversed is known as one of fierce and sudden storms in the period between December and March. During its flight, however, the plane should encounter no extreme winds, according to mariners.

For the first half of its hop, the Southern Cross probably will buck head winds from 15 to 25 miles an hour velocity. After passing New Caledonia, it enters a stretch of variable breezes, ranging from moderate to fresh.

Dead or Dying, Mukden Report About Chang

Associated Press.

LONDON, June 6.—The Evening News today printed a dispatch from Mukden, Manchuria, which said that Chang Tso Lin, former Northern Chinese dictator, was believed by many persons in the Manchurian city to be dead. Chang was wounded Monday morning when the train which was bringing him from Pekin was bombed.

There were also reports that he was gradually weakening and was unlikely to survive his injuries.

The dispatch said that the five wives and sixteen children of the Manchurian war lord have been summoned to his bedside in his Mukden home.

TWO FLEEING CHINESE CHIEFS REACH TIENTSIN

TIENTSIN, China, June 6.—(AP.)—After a dusty ride in rickshaws, V. K. Wellington Koo, former premier, and Wang Kemin, former minister of finance, were in the British concession at Tientsin today awaiting instructions from Mukden where Chang Tso-Lin, once dictator of North China has fled.

Derailments and congestion of rolling stock at Tientsin prevented the two cabinet ministers from coming here by railroad and they left their train and arrived somewhat dishevelled in the native conveyance.

The advices which will determine their future course will probably be delayed because of the bomb outrage at Mukden, which injured Chang Tso-Lin. A railroad message said four cars of the Manchurian war lord's trains were blown upon by the explosion and that there were rumors that Chang was more seriously injured than official advices indicated.

GENERALS IN JAM

Gen. Yang Yu-Ting, chief of staff to Chang, was held up at Peitsang and peremptorily ordered all rolling stock there moved eastward to prevent congestion of the rapid retreat of Mukdenite troops. Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, one of the chief commanders of the Pekin forces, also was prevented from traveling by rail beyond Peitsang.

Railroad travel was reported to have been interrupted near Anting, 30 miles south of Peking, and bridges damaged. The telephone line to the northern capital was cut at that point.

Railroad operation from Mukden was upset also.

A demand of Chang Tso-Hsiang, military governor of Kirin, for 20 trains of transport rear guards of the Mukden forces from Yangtsun, Chihli, to Mukden, was refused. The railroad receives orders from headquarters not to allow any trains to move toward the west.

Foreign families were evacuating Tongshaw for the port of Chin-Wangtao and others from Petitaho and nothern cities were being concentrated there. They were expected to come to Tientsin by steamer.

MRS. ADAM WYANT

It doesn't fall to the lot of every woman to sign a check for $1,060,000. Mrs. Adam Wyant, treasurer, Daughters of the American Revolution, did that very thing to pay off the bond issue on the ground for the new Constitution Hall which the daughters are to build in Washington.

Pittsburgh AS OTHERS SEE US

"Taking a broad view, Pittsburgh is of immense value and interest to our nation."

—ROBERT DOLLAR.

ROBERT DOLLAR

ROBERT DOLLAR, steamship owner, born in Falkirk, Scotland, March 20, 1844. Attended public schools until 11 and began his career in a Canadian lumber camp at 13. Settled in San Francisco and engaged in lumber business on an extensive scale and developed foreign trade. Is known as one of the largest steamship operators in the world. President of the Dollar Steamship Company. Lives in San Raefel, Cal.

For a long time back I have looked upon Pittsburgh as being the greatest steel manufacturing city of the world, and it is certainly not losing ground.

Looking at it from the viewpoint that I am personally interested in, foreign trade, I look upon Pittsburgh as being one of the most important factors in the production of steel at such a rate that it can be sold throughout the world.

So, taking a broad view, Pittsburgh is of immense value and interest to our nation.

7 IN AUTO, CHILDREN, KILLED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 6.—(AP.)—Seven children, six of them members of one family, were killed at Auburn, 12 miles south of Springfield, last night when their automobile was struck by a northbound Illinois Traction System car, interurban en route from St. Louis to Springfield.

The six brothers and sisters were children of Doren Brubaker of Virden, a small town near Auburn.

The seven boys and girls were driving east toward the interurban tracks, the motorman said, and apparently were about to stop for the train when their automobile suddenly started forward again onto the tracks.

The children are:

Samuel, 19; Mary, 17; Calvin, 15; Rosabelle, 13; June, 5; and Ellen, 3; all of the Brubaker family, and Chester Wiley, 5.

WOMAN LATEST AUTO FATALITY

A fracture of the skull suffered when she was struck by an automobile at South Fifteenth and Carson streets last midnight caused the death of Mrs. Patrick Barry, 37, of 1402 Bingham street. A woman companion with Mrs. Barry, who could not be found after the accident, narrowly missed a similar fate.

Henry Schlauss, 26, of 1706 Mary street, South Side, driver of the automobile, is held by police pending action of the coroner. Mrs. Barry expired shortly after she had been taken to the South Side Hospital.

Trepassey -:- 'FRIENDSHIP' PREPARED FOR TAKEOFF -:- London

READY

They're all ready to hop, but the fliers of the Friendship at Trepassey, N. F., slept late this morning. High winds have retarded their Atlantic flight.

THREE

Three are to make the trip. Wilmer Stultz, former Levine pilot; Lew Gordon, mechanic, and Amelia Earhart, Boston social worker and university instructor and a pilot in her own right, make up the little crew. The ship is a tri-motored Fokker, owned until recently by the Byrd South Pole expedition.

COLOR

It is Amelia Earhart who lends most of the color to the flight. She may be the first woman to cross by air.

RECORD

Veteran of many hours of flying, Miss Earhart has spent several years with airplanes. Now, however, she terms herself "mascot" of the flight. She once broke the woman's altitude record.

PROBERS URGE NEW MINE LAWS

FIGHT PIT DUST, MATHER LESSON

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 6.—(AP.)—A coroner's jury which yesterday held an inquest into the explosion at the Mather mine of the Mather Colleries Company, in which 195 miners lost their lives, last night rendered a verdict that the "explosion resulted from a combination of gas and coal dust igniting in some unknown manner." The verdict was announced by Coroner John W. Ross, of Greene county.

The report of the commission, composed of state and Federal mine inspectors and attaches of the United States Bureau of Mines, which investigated the explosion, recommended that legislation to require that mines be rock-dusted, be passed by the next Legislature.

COMMISSION'S REPORT

The report said:

"Your commission is unanimously of the opinion that the disaster was the result of an explosion of coal dust affecting in one way or another the entire operating area of the mine, including its attending passageways, and on the north side of the mine instituted by an accumulation of gas occasioned in all probability by an interruption of the air circulation.

"While the evidence as to the source of ignition is inconclusive, we are of the opinion that the proximate cause was in the storage battery locomotive."

BALLOON RACER TAKEN HOME

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 6.—Ward T. J. F. Cooper, another balloonist, burned by lightning, is still confined in the hospital.

RAIL RATE CUT EXPECTED

Prompt action is looked for from eastern railroads in respone to the appeal made yesterday by traffic representatives of Pittsburgh and adjacanet districts for the establishment of rates to restore competitive conditions that prevailed before the Illinois Central Railroad reduced its tariffs on steel and canned goods from Chicago territory to the Pacific coast. The Traffic Executives' Association for eastern territory will meet in New York tomorrow to consider the shippers' request for a joint conference.

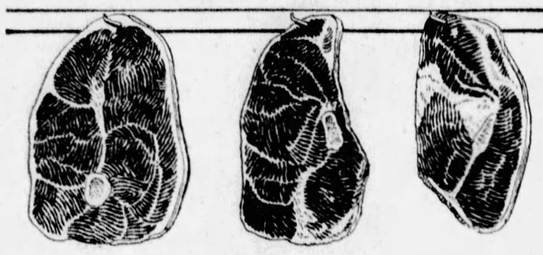
TRUE . . . McCann Quality . . . VALUES

An Open Secret!

How to Be Sure of A Good Steak or Roast



IT'S purely a question of quality—nothing haphazard about it. For exceptional flavor and tenderness, meat MUST come from grain-fed steers, fattened specially for table use—short-legged, chunky animals like the live steers we exhibited in our annex last Fall—quite different from the common cattle brought to maturity through age instead of forced feeding.

An expert can tell the difference without tasting the meat by the color of the suet and by the little "rivers" of suet flavor in the meat itself. But everyone isn't an expert. The simplest way to procure a delicious steak or roast is to buy it at McCann's. Nothing but this choice steer beef ever comes into our store. Even our "Yearling" steaks are from young steers.

Why not serve either a "Blue Ribbon" or "Yearling" Steak tonight? You'll learn more about meat that way than any other.

All Healing Is Done Through the Blood Stream

A patient does one of two things after a disease process has invaded his system. Either he recovers or else succumbs to the disease. (Chronic Stage).

There is no treatment that can have a healing effect until it reaches the blood. To strengthen the power of it—to make it nearly perfect as possible must be the basis of all treatment. No matter how radical may be the advocates of any particular science or mode of healing, there is the one great common premise which every system of treatment must acknowledge, and that basic element is THE BLOOD.

By administering BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS directly into the blood stream, their healing virtues are not lost. A great truth comes into view, and that is, intravenous therapy is fast becoming one of the prime autocrats of medicine. A method that is scientific while the results are more certain.

BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS affect not only one organ, but have a corrective influence on every part of the body. One serum frequently gives relief. Chronic and obstinate diseases often readily yield to the action of BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS.

We invite you to call for a free consultation, no matter what your ailment is. No doctor charges. Patients pay for the serums only. We are successfully treating Anemia, Asthma, Rheumatism, Kidney and Stomach trouble, High Blood Pressure, Neuritis, Catarrh of the Ears, Nose and Throat, Laboratory Examination, Blood or Secretions, Free. Come and talk to the patients. Results are what you want.

Color Demanded For Bovine Aristocracy

MILWAUKEE, June 6.—(AP.)—The fad for color has reached the bovine world. One of the issues at the forty-third annual convention of the Holstein Friesian Association of America, which opened here yesterday, was adoption of standards governing the color combination of pure bred cattle.

Many of the 200 delegates from 43 states urged more of a black and white mixture in the Holsteins. An animal that does not have four white feet, or which is entirely black or white, is not eligible now to be registered. The breeders held that development of certain Holstein standards had resulted in too much solid color.

MARATHONERS CUT TO 19 COUPLES

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., June 6.—Old Father Time's scythe cut down the number of contestants in the Nu-Ken Garden dance marathon to 20 couples at the fifty-eighth hour.

Stella Welesky, Natrona, and A. Martinson, Parnassus, found it too tiresome to keep step with the music after 47 hours and 15 minutes and abandoned hope for winning the world's championship honors. Frances Bronson, Natrona, and Sam Liberto, Pittsburgh, stepped out of the picture lacking 10 minutes of completing 54 hours.

Amelia MacCederborg, 5, of 442 Argonne drive, Parnassus, was named "Baby Queen" at a contest held yesterday.

TWO COUPLES QUIT

WASHINGTON, PA., June 6.—Twenty-four candidates for the corn championship of Washington county were stepping it off in the dance marathon in the Gardens here when the fifty-fifth hour grind began today.

Despite the cheering influence of a large audience two teams succumbed to the rigors of the grind early today. The quitting whistle blew for John Lestor and Agnes Yaros of Washington, after they had put in 50 hours and 20 minutes, and at the 5 o'clock rest period Elmer DeMarino of McKeesport and Annie Lestor, of Canonsburg, ceased to be contestants, their mark being 53 hours.

14 STILL IN

MASONTOWN, Pa., June 6.—Seven couples were hoofing toward the goal of 20 per cent of the gate receipts in Masontown's dance marathon at noon today, 60 hours after the start made at 12:01 a. m. Monday. Three couples have fallen by the wayside.

The shuffle is being held in a large vacant storeroom in Wolkoff Hall. A five-piece orchestra peps up the dancers every night till midnight and in the 15-minute periods of participants, others flock on the floor.

MANUFACTORY AGENTS TO PICNIC AT PINES

Elaborate plans have been made for the annual picnic and field day of the Manufacturers' Representatives Association which will be held at the Pines Saturday afternoon and night. Athletic events will be held during the afternoon with a complete program of field sports. A dinner followed by dancing will be held in the evening. Provisions has been made for about 500 guests.

KLAN WIZARD SEAKS AT INDIANA (PA.) MEET

INDIANA, Pa., June 6.—(AP.)—Imperial Wizard Hiram Evans, of the Ku Klux Klan, addressed an assemblage of organization members in the high school auditorium here last night. Evans, with his staff, is making a tour of this portion of the state. An open-air meeting had been planned for a site near Indiana, but rain caused the meeting to be transferred to the high school.

DANGER

Your tongue is the best barometer of your physical condition. Look at it every morning before breakfast. If it is coated with white, yellow or brown coloring, and does not have a clean red appearance you are constipated and not well.

Heed Its Warning

Constipation causes more ailments than all other diseases, and is the result of not having a daily bowel movement. Sick-headache, indigestion, biliousness and sallow complexion follow. Ask your druggist for a 25c red paper package of CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS "Safe Laxative". Take a dose to-night and continue one pill after each meal. Don't stop—until your tongue is clean. You will be surprised at the tonic effect this doctor's formula will have on you.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

News and Announcements of Attractions in Theaters Side By Side With Chat About Stars of Films

LOCAL PLAYER IN PITT

In the cast of "Why Men Leave Home," in which the George Sharp Players are appearing in the Pitt Theater this week, is Peggy Dougherty, a Pittsburgh girl. Miss Dougherty has had wide experience on the professional stage, appearing on the Keith-Albee circuit and in "Louis XIV" on the road.

"Little Old New York," with Harry Bannister, Katherine Wilson, Josephine Whittell, Kathryn Card, Fred Sullivan, Clifford Dunstan and other members of the Nixon Players, to be given in the Nixon next week, is a comedy which had a run of one year in the Plymouth, New York.

There will be six big acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville in the Davis next week. The motion picture will be "Don't Marry," featuring Lois Moran. The program will be rounded out by latest news reels and "Topics of the Day."

Miss Dunn Lead In Film With Al Jolson

Josephine Dunn will play the second lead in Warner Brothers' road show, "The Singing Fool," starring Al Jolson. Negotiations for a loan of her services have been consummated between Warner Brothers and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, to whom she is under contract.

Lloyd Bacon soon will be ready to start this picture with which Al Jolson will follow up his recent hit, "The Jazz Singer." Players recruited thus far for "The Singing Fool" include Betty Bronson, who will play the feminine lead; Reed Howes, Davey Lee and Arthur Housman.

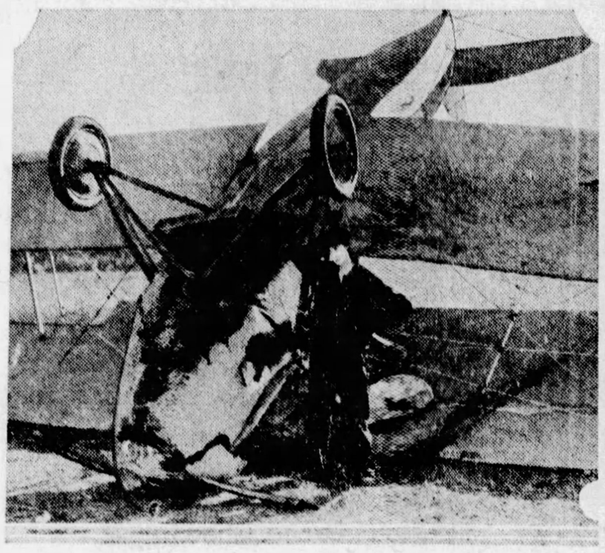
James Kirkwood's Wife Stages Comeback

Give a rah-rah for Lila Lee. Lila, who is still Mrs. James Kirkwood off screen, was practically retired from film work. Then she decided to stage a come-back. Long Young, who writes 'em and shoots 'em in a week, gave Lila her first break in a quickie called "The Adorable Cheat." Burton King, astute director, watched her work and seized her for a couple of Excellent Pictures' films. And now, Lila has been given a nice role in "Just Married," the Paramount picture featuring Ruth Taylor and Jimmy Hall.

SUSPECT QUESTIONED IN ATTACK ON WOMEN

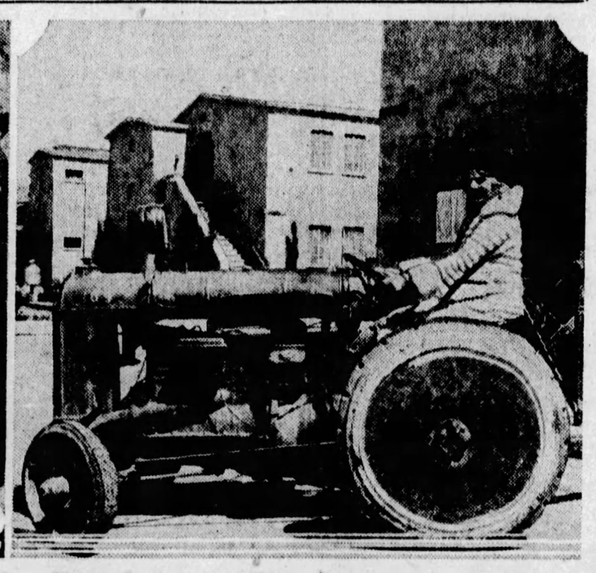
Alleged to have confessed mistreating a 6-year-old Negro girl yesterday, Richard Johnson, 43, Negro, of Bedford Flats, 1312 Bedford avenue, was grilled by detectives to determine whether he knew of recent attacks on white women. The sleuths planned to summon victims to view the Negro at a "stand-up."

WHAT TO DO? :-: PLAYING MOVIE :-: CHAUFERETTE



Colleen Moore is puzzled and you'd be, too, if you were a French peasant girl, as she is in "Lilac Time," and found something like this lying around in your back yard.

Jack Holt turns the crank, his son, Tim, acts as director and Sally Blane is the "actress" in this scene between movie scenes of "The Vanishing American."



Thelma Todd tries out the studio tractor as an experiment in the social life of Hollywood's movie colony. Nothing like being exclusive in vehicles as in other things.

Nobile's Dirigible In Current Reels

The first motion pictures of Gen. Nobile and the great dirigible Italia, at Spitzbergen, on the eve of the tragic trip to the North Pole are being shown in current issues of the M-G-M News and International Newsreel.

The almost unsurmountable obstacles that Nobile and his crew had to overcome are vividly portrayed in these extraordinary pictures, which were brought back to civilization with amazing speed, to be shown at a time when the fate of the intrepid explorer is still in doubt.

The pictures were made at Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, by M-G-M News and International Newsreel cameramen. The films were taken out on the only boat sailing in weeks to Oslo, Norway; carried by airplanes across Norway and Sweden into Germany, and by other planes to Southampton, where they were placed aboard the Cunarder Berengaria, bound for New York.

Lupe Valez, Mexican Actress, Latest Movie Player to Try Hand at Writing Screen Yarns

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1928, Premier Syndicate.)

LOS ANGELES, June 6.

AT THE rate the flicker emoters are tossing off original stories, it would seem that the dumbbells have really been exiled to the gymnasium. Here's Lupe Valez, the Mexican cyclone. Without even rattling her cranium, Lupe gave birth to a yarn (not awn) that has so impressed Sam Taylor, United Artists' director, that this company may purchase it for early production. I don't know anything about Lupe's brain-child other than it does not concern Mexico and that the "bull" in it is strictly boxoffice.

Lupe put in a "here-I-am-and-yonder-I-go" appearance at the luncheon Estelle Taylor tendered Louella O. Parsons and Beulah Livingstone on the noon of their Manhattan departure. She did the big dash because she is personal appearancing in Los Angeles with "The Gaucho." Lupe is knocking the home town public for a veritable loop. She sweeps onto the stage and gives 'em that "zip personality" yeast. And do they rise to it? Ask Lupe, who only takes her "art" seriously when she gets a hundred per cent reaction. Incidentally, she looked quite the spirit of sportdom in her all white outfit.

Maybe I shouldn't tell this, but 'tis much too good to keep. The story concerns Marie Korda, the Australian blonde, first and last seen in "Helen of Troy." Clive Brook, so the yarn begins, trailed over to the Korda home to invite Alexander K. to play tennis. Alek wasn't home, Marie was. She declared herself delighted at the idea and forthwith donned a pair of tennis socks and sleeveless frock for the occasion. To the court. The game progressed. Suddenly, Marie stopped and sat down. "Geev me a razor," she demanded. Her request precipitated a furor, but the lady's wish was law. "A razor! A razor! My kingdom for a razor! cried the blade seekers. Ah, ha—victory. Marie smiled sweet thanks. Everybody gazed agog to see what she planned doing with the razor. Enter "Auntie" climax. Without more ado, Mrs. Korda calmly shaved her legs and resumed the match with gusto.

I attended a dinner given by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts at the Roosevelt Hotel last evening. William De Mille conducted the meeting. Some 40 directors and scenarists attended. "The purpose of tonight's session," Mr. De Mille explained, "is to discuss talking pictures. The talking picture is here to stay. What are we going to do about it? For years, we have agreed the silent drama is in its infancy. Suddenly we awake to discover the infant has a child—the talking picture. (Laughter). We know the child's parents are the motion picture and the stage, but which is its father and which is its mother remains to be seen."

Several writers argued the talking picture was a fad; that the public didn't care for them. The general consensus of opinion however, was to the contrary. Indeed, the producers are quietly organizing to house the talking picture requirements. I presume the public must be interested in this form of entertainment. Are you?

Director Jimmy Cruze's mother passed away the other day. Jimmy learned the sad news when he returned from location on "The Mating Call," starring Tom Meighan, with Evelyn Brent and Renee Adoree featured. The next day, however, he was back on the job again, his feeling strictly personal and the picture the thing.

JOHNSTOWN ALDERMAN INDICTED FOR EXTORTION

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 6.—(AP.)—The Cambria county grand jury yesterday returned true bills containing nine separate indictments charging extortion against Alderman Ephriam Wirick and Constables Ambrose Berkebile and Charles Robertson, all of Johnstown. The charges in the indictments were alleged to have resulted from liquor law violations in this section. The four indictments against Alderman Wirick included 274 counts, the three against Berkebile 168 counts and two against Robertson 111 counts.

REAL ESTATE

J. H. Hillman, Jr., has purchased the old Twentieth street power house of the Duquesne Light Company at the northeast corner of Twentieth and Railroad streets, Second Ward, for $355,000. The lot fronts 177 feet on Railroad street and has an average depth of 365 feet to the Allegheny River.

Building figures in Pittsburgh for May showed a decline from the previous month and the same month last year. There were 886 permits issued for work valued at $3,186,738, compared with 902 permits amounting to $4,691,106 in May 1927, and 681 permits for $6,450,048 in April, 1928.

A trade deal has been closed in which John E. Born has sold to John H. Ward & Sons seven new houses at 3900-48 Beechwood boulevard near the Greenfield Bridge. Mr. Born received the deed for 20 houses in Singer street near Tokio street, Thirteenth Ward. The T. E. Clinton Company was the broker.

A double brick dwelling and four garages in Pennwood avenue, Wilkinsburg, lot 43x160 feet, have been sold by Elijah H. Hulem to Joseph Retzler for $20,000. The Wilkinsburg Real Estate & Trust Company was the broker.

Edward Zimmerman sold for F. M. Morrow to S. E. Wampler an acre fronting on the Frankstown road, Penn township, for $2,500. The buyer is erecting a brick and shingle bungalow.

A three-story building at 1441-43 Potomac avenue and a one-story building at 1445 Potomac avenue, lot 60x111 feet, have been sold by Dr. Lazurus Rosenthal to Leo E. Einstein.

WISHES CHANGE

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Time can add two wishes—and make one.

WISHES change as faces do. You FEEL as if you had the very same face with which you looked out upon the pleasant world when you were seven. But if you should collide with a man who played with you when you were those joyously few years old, a man who had not seen you since then until now, he would never know you by the face that you wear now.

Wishes and yearnings change, too; though you are sure while you are in the throes of wishing that they NEVER WILL! What I wanted when I was twenty I would run from now if I saw it coming. Honestly, wouldn't you, too? I mean some things. Not Success and Happiness. I wanted those then, and those two things I court yet, and so do you. I mean the lesser, idler dreams. Flaming twenty, dancing her way along, says, "I will never marry any but a dark man. I adore black hair and eyes and brown faces. What? I'll marry whatever I fall in love with? Well, it'll never be any but a dark, fiery-eyed, tall, brown man! I know it. That's my wish." And flaming twenty! When twenty is thirty and has changed her face slightly, along with her dreams, her diversions, her ideals, and her understandings, and is married . . . it is to a broad-shouldered, rather short young man with an open, kind, blue eye, crisp, Swedishly-gold hair and pink skin that descends, to her delight, to her baby-girl. Wishes vanish, no matter how earnest, and give place to new ones. Sixteen says he will never stay home a day, believe him, when he is twenty-one. From then on he is going to be a living, walking example from the pages of Conrad. He is going to rove the world, have a look into every corner of it, and come out a hero, perhaps, with a new corner to his credit! But when sixteen is thirty, sometimes he wouldn't even take the fact of this wish if it was offered to him whole. He is too busy competing in a busines world off Broadway, and the making of money has taken the place of palm fronds against a cobalt sky.

And sometimes wishes, in changing, go through another miracle. Sometimes two separate wishes make one. One and one make one! Two children, a boy and a girl, set their ships of wishes a-sail. At that age they are indeed two different wishes, not even skin. The boy's wish is to be a hero in buckskin, Daniel Boone, the Deerslayer, the Pathfinder. The little girl's—to be Cinderella! Selfish wishes, wide as the poles.

Later, add, say, seventeen years, or fifteen; the same two set a wishing ship a-sail. And one and one have turned into one. There is only One Wish aboard. The Cinderella and the Pathfinder have resolved into just themselves; they wish now for no disguises. Just to be themselves and to gain Life and Love together!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Marriage license: A license to begin telling a man the real truth about himself—and to stop telling a woman ANYTHING!

In these days, the girl has the right to make the first advances in love, and even to force the issue by doing the proposing. She also has the right to push a locomotive off the track with her motor car. But try and DO it!

HELEN ROWLAND

Life is like a violin; it is only after years and years of practice that you learn what sweet harmonies it can make, and how to touch the strings that turn it into a melody.

The average man thinks that he can't be a "he-man" and at the same time wear flowered pajamas. But, oh, how he loves to shine in a lot of gold braid, a Masonic apron and a cocked hat!

* * *

You can always tell the guest room at a glance. It's the one with the prettiest bedspread and the most uncomfortable bed, the handsomest curtains and the window that sticks, the embroidered towels and the clock that doesn't go.

* * *

Everything has its compensations. In the days when kitchen stoves and women's stockings were plain black, there were a lot more good pies and cakes in the world—and incidentally there were a lot more husbands who died from dyspepsia.

* * *

"Lots of things are caught by kissing," according to the doctors. Oh, yes, many a girl has caught a millionaire that way, and many a married man has caught the devil.

* * *

Silence is golden in a man, pure radium in a woman—and just plain grouchiness in a husband.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, June 7

ALTHOUGH the inimical planetary forces may not be denominated as powerful, yet there may be difficulties, perplexities and complications, with a tendency to restlessness and an impulsive desire to modify unsatisfactory conditions forthwith. It would be well to suppress this inclination and to refrain from speculative ventures and sudden change or travel. Be not depressed by small worries and postponements.

Those whose birthday it is may plan to meet a year of deferred and complicated undertakings, in which it would be unwise to hazard the finances. Also an inclination to move about and stir things up rashly, to make sudden changes or journeys, had best be suppressed.

A child born on this day may be restless and prone to adventure and to take chances in many directions. Although it may be bright and ingenious, its best training should be in the direction of application, diligence and conservation of its funds.

As the wisdom of the Supreme guides the motion of the stars, so the reason of man rules the influences which rotate and circulate in his soul.—PARACELSUS.

Unsound Kidneys Need Special Care

THROUGH the kidneys pass nearly one-half of all the waste products of the body. Since all body wastes, and especially such as go through the kidneys, are poisons, you can see how necessary it is that there shall be no interruption to their passage.

DR COPELAND

In Bright's disease the function of the kidneys is disturbed, and no longer can they eliminate the nitrogen products, known to the doctors as urea, uric acid and ammonia. If the disease can not be relieved speedily, there must be an immediate reduction in the intake of foods rich in nitrogen.

At the same time, the life of the patient must be so regulated that there will be the least possible demand for protein food. This means placing a limitation upon the amount of physical exertion.

I have explained to you that food is taken for two purposes—to supply energy and to keep the tissues in repair. The latter function is performed by the protein. Of the proteins, the best examples are lean meat and the whites of eggs.

In the severe and acute forms of Bright's disease, milk may be the only food safe to give. Even this may be too rich in protein. Water should be administered freely. To this may be added sugar, cereals, gruel and possibly bread. Buttermilk and oatmeal may be useful.

If milk is well borne, it will supply all the nourishment needed. As the case progresses, vetegtables may be added, and in due time, perhaps, a limited amount of meat.

The chronic form of Bright's disease is a difficult condition to treat. It lasts for years and the diet must be regulated carefully all this time.

There is a choice in the method of cooking the meat. Since the juices seem to contain the harmful elements, broiled and roasted meat, and meat soups are to be avoided. Boiled meat, especially if twice boiled, is far safer, even if less palatable.

Ham contains much less protein than beef, but, of course, it has enough to be avoided. Oysters are low in protein content, as also are salmon, and some of the other fish, except cod and shad, and may be taken in moderation.

Fruits and green vegetables, the cereals and other carbohydrates—including sugar and the starches—milk, cream, sweet cider, unfermented fruit juices, vichy, tea and coffee in moderation, the yolk of the egg, potatoes—all these are safe to give.

The bowels must be kept open and the skin must be active. Frequent baths, gentle exercise, warm climate and mental poise are helpful.

With proper care and diet the natural expectation of life may be looked forward to if the treatment is begun early. A long and useful life may be counted on if the right care is exercised.

For persons in good health, meat and other proteins are very essential to the bodily welfare.

For the Lovelorn

Undecided

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a very interested reader of your column and I am coming to you for advice. I am going with a boy two years my senior and he is rather popular with the girls. I have gone with him for about six months, but my parents don't approve of him. What should I do?

UNDECIDED.

Your parents must have some good reason for disapproving of this boy, so why not talk it over with them? You may disapprove of him, too.

Bright Eyes

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a constant reader of your wonderful advice to the lovelorn and am now coming for some. There is a boy who has been forcing his attention upon me and I do not care for him. I am in my early teens and he is 11 years my senior. Could this be the cause of my not caring for him? When he asks for another date should I tell him he is too old or that I don't care for his friendship? I do not want to offend him, so please help me. Miss Gale, there is a certain boy in our neighborhood whom I like very much. The trouble is my girl friend also cares for him and is very jealous of me. What should I do? Give my boy friend up and hold my girl friend, or give the girl friend up? There is a boy who lives next door to me and we like each other very much. I have known him for nine years, so do you think it is proper for me to let him kiss me? Mother does not mind me kissing him, but whatever you say goes, so please tell me what is best? Miss Gale, I agree with you on the smoking, petting and drinking questions and also hope to agree with you on the necking question after I receive your advice.

BRIGHT EYES.

He's much too old for you, my dear, so let that be the excuse for not seeing him any more. Don't you think this girl's friendship means more to you than this boy, who is just one of several whom you like? Don't let this boy or any other kiss you. Petting is cheapening, you know.

UNDERGROUND DISTILLERY RAIDED

An underground distillery was discovered this morning, Federal prohibition agents report, when they raided a dwelling at 1612 Clark street. Pipes from the huge underground chamber at the rear led into the house, agents said. A 1,000 and two 500-gallon vats of moonshine were confiscated, according to the agents. Two stills and 60 gallons of moonshine were found in the house, it was said. There was no one in the place when the agents arrived and no arrests were made.

Becoming suspicious when they saw cans in an automobile parked in Gibbon street late last night, Federal prohibition agents investigated and discovered, they say, 30 gallons of moonshine. Louis Jiansante, 38, of 4512 Minerva street, and James McDonough, 32, of 67 Magee street, were said to have been in the car.

The Hill Top Inn, Broadhead road, Moon township, was reported raided by the agents. Two pints of beer were found in an ice box and 17 cases were discovered in bushes at the rear of the place, the agents said.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

June's Social Calendar Resembles Country Fair in Providing Something to Please Everyone

THE month of June, socially speaking, is going to be a bit like a country fair—something to please everyone. There will be weddings, and horse shows, and benefit circuses, and golf tournaments, and even debutante parties.

One of the girls who will be presented to society this month is Jane Edson, daughter of Mrs. John J. Edson, Jr., of "Joy Gardens," Sewickley.

Mrs. Chester Marsh Van Kleeck, of East Drive, Sewickley, will entertain at a luncheon on Friday, June 15, for Jane, in the Allegheny Country Club.

Jane went to the Masters School at Dobbs Ferry.

Tomorrow, Friday and Saturday will find Pittsburgh quite deserted by the "400," for of course everyone will be at the Allegheny Country Club horse show at Sewickley Heights. Already 73 boxes have been sold, and even parking space is at a premium.

Every year more folks like to view the show from their cars, parked around the ring. Family groups are likely to choose a box, and those who are giving large parties like boxes, too. And there will be a number from out of town holding boxes.

Among those who are going to occupy boxes are the Frank Ward Severances, the George H. Calverts, the Henry Raymond Hilliards, the Ralph S. Richards, the Frank Faber Brooks, Mrs. James B. Oliver, Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander, the Carroll Preston Davises.

And Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., will, as usual, have a box, and Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe is another social leader who has decided to see the show from a box. The junior John Hartwell Hillmans have reserved a box, I believe, for their family and guests, as has Mrs. Terrell Johnson. The James Crossan Chaplins will also be seen in a box as will be the Thomas A. McGinleys, Mrs. John C. Oliver and the B. Preston Schoyers.

And of course the William Christopher Robinsons will be at the show, in a box, as usual.

The T. McKee Grahams, Judge J. A. Evans, the Chester Van Kleecks and the Harry Darlingtons will be box holders, too.

Other prominent society folks who will have boxes include the William Larimer Mellons, the J. Denniston Lyons, the James Francis Burkes, Mrs. Henry R. Rea and Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederick Byers. Sounds like a Palm Beach gathering, doesn't it?

Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Norton Van Voorhis, the Frank Scott Willocks, the Charles Frederick Holdships, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan, the Walter S. Mitchells and the George Greer Coolidges also will entertain box parties.

And of course since this is June, it is now time to talk of weddings. Almost every day sees at least one new date set or the plans announced for another. Among the latter is that of Virginia Patterson, daughter of the Harry H. Pattersons, of Beechwood boulevard, and Murray Bell Grimes, son of William Dermitt Grimes, of South Negley avenue, which will take place June 26 at 5:30 o'clock in the Sixth Presbyterian Church, and for which invitations have just been sent out. A reception in the Longue Vue Country Club will follow, I understand.

Mrs. William Booth, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Lewis W. Hicks, Jr., will be matrons of honor, and Luella Marshall, Virginia Wilson, Harriet Patterson and Ann Watt, all of Pittsburgh, will be bridesmaids.

William Booth will be best man, and Hal C. Patterson, brother of the bride, Lewis W. Hicks, Jr., and Nevin Booth, all of Pittsburgh, and Nelson Plum, Herbert Sanford, and Charles Robins, all of New York, will be the ushers.

There will be another wedding on June 26. Lida Brickell Repp, daughter of the Robert M. Repps, of Atlantic avenue, has named that date for her marriage to Dr. Edward Harper Rynearson, son of the Edward Rynearsons, of Howe street.

The wedding will be at 8 o'clock that night in the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church with the Rev. Dr. A. E. Day as the officiant.

Martha Hamlin Cooper will be maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Eleanor Baton, Virginia Rossell, Mary Thompson, Agnes Rane, Eloise Wilson and Sally Rawsthorne.

Sylvester Rynearson will be his brother's best man, and the ushers will be Robert M. Repp, William Wirt King, of Carthage, Mo.; Dr. Scott Oehrle, Dr. Edward Williams, of Altoona; Dr. Warren Wilkins, of Toronto, and Dr. J. D. Garvin, of this city.

A reception in the Repp home will follow the wedding. There will be, of course, much entertaining for the bridal party. Eleanor Baton will give a dance, I hear, on June 23 in the University Club. Of course there will be luncheons. One will be given on June 23 by Eleanor Wilson in her home, and Sally Rawsthorne will give a tea in her home on June 24. Martha Cooper will give the rehearsal dinner on June 25 in the University Club.

Jean Browne Scott, of Philadelphia, will arrive here tomorrow morning to ride her harness horses and ponies in the Allegheny Country Club horse show, I hear. Jean will be the guest of her uncle and aunt, the Walter Hardies, of Bartlett street, while she is here. She will be accompanied to Pittsburgh by the Hardies' daughter, Janet. Both girls, you remember, will sail in July for London, where Jean will marry Nigel Claudian Coman July 25.

Only the immediate families were present this afternoon at the wedding of Miss Theodore Frances Harnack, daughter of Mrs. Theodore F. Harnack, of North Linden avenue, and Robert M. McKeever, of Braddock, which was solemnized in the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. Percival H. Barker. Miss Edith Adell Harnack was her sister's maid of honor and James Alexander, nephew of the bridegroom, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. McKeever will take an eastern trip and after July 1 will be at home in North Linden avenue. Miss Harnack was guest of honor at a bridge-luncheon and shower given Saturday by her sisters, Mrs. Carl Brine and Mrs. Lee Dunkin.

Stanton Belfour is chairman of the committee in charge of the "Garden Night in June," the annual senior ball of the University of Pittsburgh, to be held Friday night in the Hotel Schenley. Miss Jean Roy Will lead the grand promenade. Mr. Belfour is assisted by Nicholas Troilo, Miss Dorothy Ream, Alexander Kyle, Chester Doverspike, Nelson Runger, Miss Dorothy Koch, Miss Ruth Matteson, Milton Nicholson, Lewis Smylie, William Brinker, James Braden and Fulton Smith.

Miss Ruth Justice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Martin Justice, of Darlington road, whose marriage to Millard Corey Howley, of Williamsport, Pa., will be solemnized June 16, has asked Miss Marjorie Barnhardt, of this city, to be her maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Lora and Miss Marian Rowley, of Syracuse, N. Y., sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Margaret Eckhardt, of this city, will play the wedding music. John Oerhli, of Williamsport, will be best man and the ushers will include Franklin W. Kaufmann and William Justice, Jr. The ceremony will be performed at 11:30 o'clock in the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer by the Rev. Dr. Robert Nelson Meade.

The alumni committee of the February class of 1928, South Hills High School, will hold a dance tonight in the Dormont Masonic Hall. Warren Schnabel is chairman of the committee in charge.

The marriage of Miss Jean Byers Wright, daughter of Mrs. Margaret B. Wright, of Texas avenue, Dormont, and Thomas William Verner, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Verner, of Dawson street, Oakland, was solemnized Saturday night at 7:45 o'clock in the Wright home by the Rev. Dr. William J. Reid, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church. Miss Margaret Wright, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Clarence L. Verner was his brother's best man.

The Amity Club will hold its fourth dance Friday night in the Guild Hall, Center avenue. Jack Scheib has appointed the following committee: Miss Margaret Reilly, Walter Leslie, Miss Rosemary Doherty, John O'Connell, James Kennedy, Miss Violet Hughes, Miss Mercedes Roeser, Miss Catherine Reilly and Roger Doherty.

Roosevelt Chapter No. 264, O. E. S., will hold its annual picnic Saturday in the chapel at Riverview Park.

ZOAR HOME -:- BABIES "SMILE" ANNIVERSARY -:- 15 YEARS

READY

He is "all smiles," ready for the reception which he will hand out to the visitors at Zoar Home tomorrow.

FIFTEENTH

Friends of the home who drop in for the fifteenth anniversary supper and bazar tomorrow will find several contented groups such as this one waiting to receive them in the nursery.

TRIPLETS

Three of a kind will beat any two pair, especially when they are determined as these triplets. Maybe they don't look quite as husky as they might, but "give 'em a chance."

WAR?

This looks like latent war, but there will be nothing like it at the bazar and supper to be given by the board of directors.

HOME

This little chap looks out on his world well satisfied, for he knows what "all the comforts of home" are.

REGENT CLUB CLOSES YEAR WITH LUNCHEON

Bright and snappy toasts, some charming music and a beautifully appointed luncheon all contributed their share to a happy conclusion for the Regent Square Woman's Club. Sixty members and their guests met yesterday in the Stanton Heights Golf Club and heard the program, which was presided over by Mrs. W. G. Fixel, with Mrs. F. W. Wappat as toastmistress. Mrs. Walter K. Long in her toast to the past recalled how the club has grown from a small beginning as a neighborhood Bible class into its present influential place in the community. The Regent Square Club is unique in that it tithes itself, having pledged one-tenth of its income to philanthropy. Mrs. W. H. Miller and Mrs. Fixel toasted the present and Mrs. Wappat the future. The musical numbers were by Mrs. Bertha Gross King, who played a triple role on the program, presenting both piano and vocal duets and accompanying Miss Cynthia Lou Huckstep, for her violin solos. Miss Huckstep in turn accompanied the violin solos by Miss Virginia James. Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, president of the Congress of Clubs, added a short talk to the program, Mrs. Oscar Fyler, the retiring Regent Square head, introducing her.

The decorations and appointments were in yellow and white, Regent Square colors.

The Women's Press Club ended its season yesterday with a tea in the Woman's City Club at which were present members of the Pitt Stock Company and many of the editors of the daily newspapers. Mrs. Madeline Young Love and Miss Helen Winifred Donnelly, retiring and incoming presidents, received the guests, and Miss Catherine M. Patterson and her committee had charge of the tea. An informal program included several songs, beautifully sung, by Miss Peggy Dougherty, one of the Pitt players, with Miss Ethel Stenger at the piano, and impersonations and a breezy little talk by Miss Mabel Kroman.

Mrs. Edith Taylor Thomson, who has returned from Hollywood for a visit of a few weeks, and Mrs. John A. Shoemaker, both former presidents, poured. At the business session the nominating committe's ticket was unanimously elected, as follows: President, Miss Donnelly; vice presidents, Mrs. Love and Mrs. Thomson; secretary, Miss Marie McSwigan; treasurer, Miss Patterson; directors, Mrs. A. W. Smith, Jr., Mrs. Frances McCommon, Mrs. Shoemaker, Mrs. Charles M. Bregg, Miss Anna Bell Craig and Miss Bernice Shine.

Mrs. W. S. Trosh was elected president of the Pittsburgh Literary and Musical Club at a luncheon and business meeting in the Woman's City Club yesterday. Mrs. Adele Eggers Furniss is now vice president, Miss Lillian P. Sprague, secretary, and Mrs. R. G. Himmelrich, treasurer. Mrs. Mary J. Cowley, music chairman, outlined the musical plans for the coming season, Miss Lettea Donaldson, program chairman, doing the same with the literary outlook.

Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, vice president-at-large in the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, is having a part on the programs of the San Antonio biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which will come to a close tomorrow. In the departmental conferences, Mrs. Diehl spoke on "How to Begin Developing Americanism," which was under the department of American citizenship last Thursday afternoon, and, representing the League of American Pen Women, she spoke concerning scenarios at the conference for readers and writers.

McClure's direction this group has progressed and from its number solos are being offered. Mrs. Ruth Glasser Belsmeyer is accompanist. Mrs. John F. Miller is chairman of the social hour.

Dr. Walter B. Greenway, newly elected president of Beaver College, will address the Beaver College Club of Pittsburgh at its meeting Saturday afternoon in the College Club. A program of vocal music will be given by Mrs. Stanley B. Miller, of Beaver, and a reception for the new officers will follow. Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, retiring president, is hostess.

Mrs. W. T. Grimm, of Knoxville, will be hostess to the Dormont Young Women's College Club on Saturday afternoon. The members plan to spend the afternoon making scrap books for the Children's Hospital.

A regular meeting of the Bradford Woods Woman's Club will be held Friday evening in the home of Mrs. William Crawford and Chauncey Lobingier will speak on the proposed amendments to be voted on in the fall election. The club is serving a plate dinner in the schoolhouse tonight and on June 28 will have an all-day sewing at the home of Mrs. F. D. Fleming in preparation for the annual August garden party.

Its year was ended yesterday by the Brookside Woman's Club with a picnic for members and children at the home of Mrs. J. W. Phillips. Next year's officers of the club are: Mrs. J. T. Hawthorne, president; vice president, Mrs. L. W. McCoy; recording secretary, Mrs. G. Hunter Culley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. N. O. Smith Peterson; treasurer, Mrs. W. P. Allen.

A lawn fete will be held tomorrow night by the women of the Mary S. Brown Memorial Methodist Church, Beechwood boulevard. Mrs. S. C. Barton is general chairman.

FIFTY COUPLES ENTER DUQUESNE GARDEN DANCE

Henry Townsend, who is promoting the dance marathon which begins in Duquesne Garden on Wednesday, June 13, announced today that 50 couples had entered this latest endurance effort. To avoid conflict with the blue laws, the dancers will be moved to a steamer on the Aleigheny River over Sunday, Townsend said, and returned to the Garden early Monday morning.

Pass' Time Limit Moved to Speed Car Traffic

In order to help relieve traffic conditions on Monday mornings, the Pittsburgh Railways Company has moved forward one day the period in which its weekly passes will be valid. The change will become effective next Monday. The passes, instead of being good from 5:00 a. m. Monday to the following Monday morning, will be valid from 5:00 a. m. Sunday to the following Sunday.

Under the new system it is hoped that passengers will have passes when they board cars on the inbound trips Monday morning, and thus abviate holding back the cars.

BRIDE OF 11 MONTHS REPORTED MISSING

Mrs. Mary Miller, 23, of 149 East Sixteenth avenue, Homestead, is being sought by attaches of the Missing Persons Bureau. Mrs. Rose Lengyel, her mother, who reported her missing, is at a loss to explain her disappearance, but said the young woman had left home before without informing anyone. She is described as being 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighing 97 pounds and having dark hair and eyes. She was married last July.

STORMS HAMPER FLOWER SHOW

Playing tag with the elements, wind, rain and black storm clouds, the annual flower show of the Civic Club of Allegheny County got off to a slow start today in North Side square, Federal and Ohio streets. It was after noon before the park began to take on the aspect of a fete.

The wind blew down wires, lights and stands during the night, making it necessary to do all the work over again. Every flower of the garden is on exhibition, together with all the necessary equipment used in cultivating flowers and showing them off. Even to garden hats.

At noon the street cafeteria served the hungry crowds, and at 4 o'clock a tea party was planned. Diamond street will be roped off tonight for dancing, the weather permitting. If it rains the merchants at the Diamond Market have offered space in the market building for dancing.

Miss H. Marie Dermitt, secretary of the Civic Club, is in charge of the show.

VIRGINIA VALLS

GIRLS' CHIEF ALLURE ANNOUNCED

Movie directors say greatest charm is Smooth Skin

LOS ANGELES, CAL. — "The flowerlike beauty of smooth skin is a real power—it captivates," says Edwin Carewe, director for United Artists. Beautiful eyes, a perfect mouth, glorious hair—none of these mean as much as a radiant youthful skin, says Hollywood. Under the blaze of the Klieg lights nothing else will do. No make-up is clever enough to fake the velvety texture necessary for the close-ups. In Hollywood they call it "studio skin" and give it the tenderest care.

Nine out of ten screen stars are using Lux Toilet Soap to keep their skin in perfect condition. This new soap is prepared by the famous method France perfected and uses for her finest soaps. Virginia Valli says, "I delight in the marvelous velvety way it leaves my skin—only costly French soaps can compare with it."

All the big moving picture studios have placed it in their dressing rooms as the official soap. Lux Toilet Soap is manufactured by Lever Bros. Co., at Cambridge, Massachusetts.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

TO CONVENTIONS

FINE MOTORING TO POLITICAL MEETINGS

By THE MOTORING TOURIST.

Followers of the fortunes of the Republican and Democratic parties who decide they want to see the conventions, in Kansas City and Houston, and have the time to go by motor are going to find ideal running conditions on the major portion of any of the trans-continental routes between Pittsburgh and the convention cities.

There are, of course, several possible routes that may be followed from Pittsburgh and other Eastern cities.

Probably the most direct route from Pittsburgh to the scene of the Republican convention in Kansas City follows through Washington, Pa., and then over National No. 40 to Wheeling, W. Va., Columbus, O., Brandt, Dayton O., Indianapolis, Ind., St. Louis and Kansas City.

An alternate route, one that will please those who would see more of the country en route, is from Pittsburgh to Erie, over National No. 20 to Cleveland, Toledo and South Bend. From Chicago National No. 66 is followed to St. Louis, where the National No. 40 leads to Kansas City.

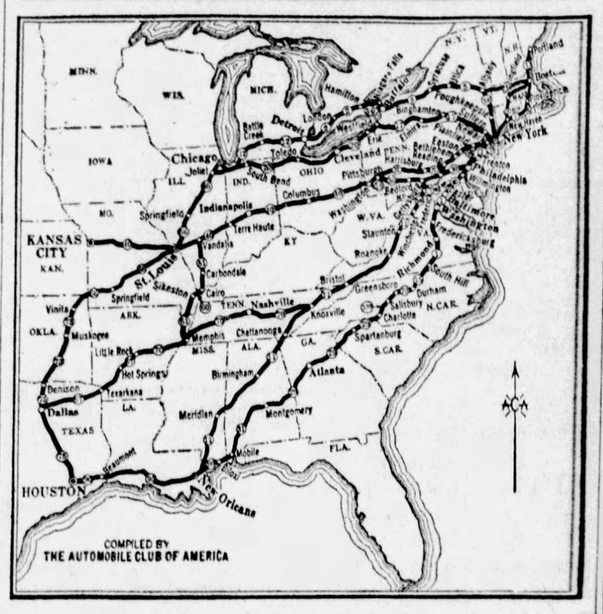
THE WAY TO TEXAS

The route that affords the major portion of hard surfaced roads to Houston, is over National Highway No. 19 to Washington, Pa., National No. 40 to St. Louis, National No. 66 to Vinita, Okla., National No. 73 to Denison, Tex., and National No. 75 Dallas to Houston.

Another route from Pittsburgh goes by way of Washington, Pa., over National No. 40 to Vandalia, Ill., National No. 51 to Cairo, Ill., National No. 60 to Sikeston, Mo., National No. 61 to Memphis, Tenn., National No. 70 to Little Rock, Ark., National No. 67 to Dallas, Tex., National No. 75 to Houston.

Alternate routes through the South to Houston, from Pittsburgh, are through Washington, D. C., Fredericksburg and Richmond, Va., Durham, N. C., Greensboro, N. C., Atlanta, Ga., Montgomery Ala., Biloxi, Miss., New Orleans, La. Another is by way of Frederick, Md., Winchester, Va., through Shenandoah Valley to Staunton, Roanoke, Bristol, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Birmingham, New Orleans.

TO THE CONVENTIONS



BY MOTOR TRAVEL

Good roads lead to the Republican convention in Kansas City and the Democratic gathering in Houston. The map above shows the various routes from Pittsburgh and other eastern points. The road west through Columbus will carry the major portion of convention travel.

EXPERT DEFENDS WOMEN AUTOISTS

FLINT, Mich., June 6.—Found—a man who says jokes about women drivers aren't funny!

He's a man in a position to know, too, for he is C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Company. In Mr. Churchill's opinion, the numerous variations of the yarn based on a woman's probable intentions when she puts out her hand while driving, are only so many reflections on the male sex itself—reflections which men themselves should and eventually will resent.

"If men would only stop to analyze the thing," said Mr. Churchill, "they would see that every such joke is a boomerang. If woman's indecisiveness when driving is so pronounced as to inspire joking, men themselves are mostly to blame.

"Men have destroyed women's confidence, and loss of confidence, more than any other factor, accounts for hesitant or eccentric manipulation of motor cars. Every time a man attempts to discredit the driving of women as a class, he is taking an even harder wallop at the men folks, whose impatience is largely responsible for whatever faults women drivers exhibit.

"Almost everyone can think of some few women whom he exempts from the category of unskilled drivers. Among my own acquaintances, at least, the thing works out according to a fairly definite rule. The best women drivers I know—drivers as sure of themselves and as expert in emergencies as any man—are those who have no men folks about. And the next best are wives who have cars of their own."

DETOUR and HIGHWAY CONDITION REPORT

Five more detours have been placed and two others have been lifted, a study of the State Highway Department detour map shows.

The new detours are:

In Lawrence Park, Erie, 0.8 miles in length, over earth and cinder roads, in good condition.

Between Compass and Honeybrook, 3 miles in length, over earth roads, in fair condition.

Between Clymer and Marion Center, 5.2 miles in length, over concrete roads, in fair condition. Detour is over Route 13 to Taylorville, turn left to Dixonville, thence over 0.2 miles of half-width construction to Marion Center.

In Chambersburg borough, 1.5 miles in length, over macadam roads, in good condition.

The detours lifted are those between Rouseville and Titusville, and Swarthmore and Chester.

COOLIDGE O. K. ASSURES GOOD ROADS FOR NATION

75,000 MILES PROVIDED BY U. S. AID

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Approval by President Coolidge of the bill authorizing federal-aid appropriations of $75,000,000 for highway building in each of the fiscal years 1930 and 1931, assures continuation of this program which has resulted in the building of close to 75,000 miles of important inter-state highways and has provided the needed impetus to road construction by the states.

This statement was issued today by National Headquarters of the American Automobile Association, which fostered the federal-aid program and since 1921 has represented the car-owners of the nation in repelling every attempt to halt this important assistance by the federal government in road building.

The national motoring body pointed out that since 1921 a total of almost a billion and a half dollars has been spent on the almost 75,000 miles of the original federal-aid program of some 185,000 miles of important inter-state routes and that it is well over one-third completed. Of this amount, says the A. A. A., the federal government has contributed $614,649,253 and there are 11,510 miles of highway under construction in this network of important roads to which the government will contribute $126,486,015.

The appropriations for 1930 and 1931 are in line with the existing policy of making authorizations two years in advance in order to provide continuity of work on the federal-aid system and allow federal and state agencies ample time to outline the construction program.

CITY DECLARES WAR

ON AUTO EXHAUST FUMES

City Council has ordered that automobile cut-outs and obnoxious exhaust fumes must go. The automobile exhaust fumes are most noticeable in the downtown district where, because of traffic tieups, motor cars are forced to stop and start at short intervals. With each start a cloud of smoke is thrown off by the motor. One remedy for this evil is a speeding up of traffic, veteran mechanics say.

"Its importance," says Thomas P. Henry, president of the national motoring body, "is shown by the fact that it is an incentive to road-building by the states, as nearly two miles are constructed by the states for each mile built with federal co-operation.

"There have been numerous attempts by private interests and by some governmental agencies to halt the federal-aid program. Each and all of these have been repelled, thanks to the aggressive stand of organized motordom. It is also a tribute to the large vision of Congress that it always has been quick to ignore attacks on federal-aid and by overwhelming majorities sustained a national policy, which is doing so much to advance the transportation needs, to promote the development of our resources, to further social well-being, to eliminate sectionalism and encourage national solidarity."

QUARTER DRIVERS FEMININE

Milady, who used to be content to sit back and watch her masculine companion drive an automobile, rapidly, and in ever-increasing number, is becoming "motorwise."

The result is that today from 20 to 25 per cent of the nation's automobile drivers are women.

This estimate, announced by the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, is based on figures in large centers throughout America.

In Pittsburgh and Allegheny county, for instance, the feminine driver already has boosted her number to a surprisingly high total—and that total constantly is growing. Estimates place the number of slightly less than 20 per cent.

In Cleveland it is estimated women drivers compose a little less than 25 per cent of the total number.

In Los Angeles the percentage of feminine drivers is in excess of 25 per cent.

In San Francisco women drivers constitute about 20 per cent of that city's total.

In the District of Columbia feminine drivers make up only 15 per cent of the total, but in New York, Philadelphia and Boston she maintains the average of a bit less than one-fourth the total.

RIGID TEST FOR DODGE CARS

One-seventh of a teaspoonful is a small volume compared to a pint and a half, but it forms the inspection standard maintained by Dodge Brothers, Inc., in machining combustion chambers of engines to insure smooth performance.

Slight variations in the sizes of the combustion chambers are inevitable when the cylinder head is cast in the foundry, according to A. H. Knight, consulting engineer for Dodge Brothers. If this exists in the finished engine, the charges in the different cylinders will be compressed to various pressures, and the successive explosions will be of unequal strength, causing rough engine performance.

"During recent years, several manufacturers have solved this problem by machining the engine combustion chambers," said Mr. Knight. "As part of the tool equipment for producing the engines for two new lines of sixes, the Victory and the Standard, Dodge Brothers installed 22 six spindle combustion chamber profile millers, having a total capacity of 1,200 cylinder heads in a nine-hour shift."

ALONG AUTO ROW

By H. W. DIETRICH,
Automobile [illegible]

Greatly increased business in the sale of new automobiles will be the result of the motor car excise tax repeal, according to a statement by Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

All automobile dealers throughout the country eliminated the 3 per cent tax from the price of new cars following the signing of the bill by President Coolidge last week, or have refunded that amount to those who purchased cars after the signing.

As a result of this further reduction in the 1928 prices of cars, June is expected to be one of the greatest months in automotive sales history. Normally, at this time of the year, sales begin to show a falling off. This year, however, sales are showing a strong tendency to maintain higher levels. The elemination of the tax will strengthen this tendency.

Mergers and the Indianapolis race are the principal topics of discussion on Auto Row. The recent consolidation of the Chrysler and Dodge interests is heralded as a move that will add further strength to the great automotive industry.

About the Indianapolis race. How many know that two makes of cars have finished first in the last five years and that only three makes of [illegible] have won the race more than one time? Cars bearing the name Duesenberg won the race in 1924, 1925 and 1927. Miller Specials were successful in 1926 and 1928. Peugeot cars won the races in 1913, 1916 and 1919. This year's race was the second fastest in the history of the Indianapolis Speedway, Louis Meyer, the winner averaging 99.482 miles an hour. The track record was established by Peter De Paolo in 1925 with an average of 101.13 miles an hour. Of further interest is the fact that of the first nine in this year's race four were Miller Specials.

R. W. Austin has been appointed manager of a newly created national business division of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, in charge of fleet sales, with headquarters in New York. During the war Mr. Austin was a member of the board of consulting engineers of the Motor Transport Corps, with headquarters at Washington. For the last year he has been engineer for Graham Brothers' Corporation, New York. A year ago he made a survey of European motor car factories for Graham brothers.

BUTLER RACE TO FINISH SAT.

BUTLER, Pa., June 6.—The postponed 100-mile automobile race that was partly staged at the fair grounds here [illegible] Decoration Day will be carried on to the [illegible] distant Saturday afternoon, commencing at 3 o'clock, daylight saving time. Rain checks for general admission and grandstand will be honored.

Most of the 13 entrants had completed the major portion of the long grind when a heavy downpour interfered with its continuation. Starter Dave Donaldson and the sponsors of the contest, having the consent of the participants, then agreed on the delayed date.

All the contestants were on the trail and in striking distance of the leaders. Each of the pilots has more than 100 laps to cover to be declared victor. It was a neck-and-neck race between Gauges Hughes, of Warren, O., and Herbert Fechter, of Pittsburgh, with Howard Patterson, of Ambridge, tangling toughly with them when the postponement was called for.

Lafe Stahlman, of Brookville, was driving his usual steady race at a fast clip. He figured that he had the century classic in his lap and would make the others extend themselves to defeat him. He was one of the most enthusiastic about returning Saturday.

Emily and Stella Hear Avis Beg Marty To Marry Her

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Emily Day and her lively sister, Kitten, are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily has made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Marty Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her and she is astonished at his popularity with some of the rich girls who snub her. Mrs. Frances Haiden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her and tells her the only aristocracy is that of work. At a party in the Rossiter home Emily grows jealous of Marilee Grainger, who is supposed to be engaged to Kent. She wanders into the moonlight. Kent follows her, kisses her and calls her beautiful. She gets a job with Mrs. Haiden. Her father dies and Rossiter offers help which her mother declines. Under Mrs. Haiden Emily has made a hit with the smart set. Avis Rossiter's father threatens to disinherit her unless she changes her ways.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"BUT poor folks can't be having all they'd like, baby. The good Lord put us here to bear the brunt and it's flying in the face of Providence to set yourself up against your betters, like."

"They're not my betters, Muz. Nor yours, nor Kitten's. Why should they be? Just because they've got money and fine homes and have other people work for them? Does that make them better than us?

"Why, the only ones better are those who are nobler—oh, Muz—please—"

Infinitely pathetic, Agnes putting her hand up—it shook a little and the ropes were very knotted along the back—brushing tears away. So gray, so defeated, beaten down by life.

Emily went to her, arms out, ran her hands along the tired face. "Emmy wouldn't hurt you, darling. Well, I only wanted to make you feel we're good as anyone. Don't now—see, I'm going to make a cup of tea."

She made it very strong after the manner of Agnes herself, and brought it in on a tray.

Agnes felt better after the second cup. But she began one of her endless reminiscences. It was all about Steve; the life they had shared. He was a kind man, she said.

"No kinder ever lived than Steven Day, though he was always one for talking a good bit. Ah well, the world goes on; ones die and are buried and others live on."

She saw him now, Emily understood, as a gentle, self-denying husband. Time and forgetfulness were beginning to glorify the years they had lived together. Criticism and shiftlessness, all the hard things, were being softened and glossed over and something, perhaps a beautiful dream of happiness Agnes once had cherished before life snatched it from her, now was being realized in her own thought.

A sad thing that happiness must be only an illusion to this woman who had sacrificed so much, given herself so generously to the needs of others.

Emily felt that catch her heart, release through her an impulse like a rush of tears. She could do one thing to make this a little more right, she could promise herself that never because of her should more sorrow come to this mother. What did it matter what she might wish her to do? Even marry Marty, if Marty wished to marry Emily Day. Oh, anything! That much in return for all Agnes had suffered. She could be that strong—yes. Vow that—easy, after all.

She made her vow, silently, standing there with her arms about the drooping shoulders.

Stella came for her in the evening and asked her to take a walk.

They went down the River road, loitered before the entrance of Highcliffe.

"Do you ever hear from Kent, Em?"

"No. Didn't expect that. Everything changes, Stell."

"I suppose so," gloomily. "Even those that don't go away. Skeets is out with Bess Tourney tonight."

Emily saw then that Stella's hands were clenched and she was choking back sobs.

"Oh, what do you care, dear? Skeets is the way he is: one girl today and another tomorrow."

"That's no comfort. He's—he's got to come back! I—it's just—I'm a fool, I suppose, but I love him! Couldn't help it—oh, all of them are rotten. What am I going to do? Can't stand this—"

Emily slipped her hand in Stella's and they walked on beyond the Grainger place under the arching trees, out toward the looming dark of North Mountain.

CHAPTER XV.

THERE was a bench pressed close to the bank at the far side of the road half covered by shrubs and swinging vines and standing in deep shadow.

An out of the way spot this was, for the road went on down to the beach and it was too early in the season for bathers.

Cars came to the end of the River road, circled the tiny park and headed back toward Lyall. They made a pleasant rushing sound in the quiet and down below the river flowed darkly, peacefully—so peacefully.

"Let's sit here, Stella. I'm sorry, dear. If I could do anything."

"No one can. Thought I could take care of myself—why are girls like this, Em? Wanting them back. No matter what they do, how rotten they are, always wanting them back.

"A girl's a fool to fall in love. Why can't we take it the way they do? Something to play with a couple of minutes? Why, I haven't looked at a fellow since I've been going around with Skeets. Not that he'd have given a darn. Every last one of 'em—rotten—"

Emily was staring out over the river, watching a boat gliding up with the tide. A little aching sadness kept turning in her thought like the sense of a cherished thing that has been and is not.

She did not believe as Stella did, she told herself. Love—oh, a radiant thing between two who could meet fearlessly and in the beauty of mutual understanding. Many women and some men were like that. They must be, else how could ideals go on?

And yet—and yet . . .

Wheels rolled softly above the hill and stopped. A moment later two came down the road; they walked to the railing and stood there, facing each other. Emily had a fleeting expression of ruddy hair as branches moved and light filtered through for an instant; the man was Marty.

Instantly she knew the girl to be Avis Rossiter.

"Let's go, Stell."

"They'll see us," Stella whispered. "Wait till they move."

But they didn't move. Their voices, very low, nevertheless carried clearly to the bench. Impossible not to hear what they said.

"You weren't very gracious when I phoned, Mart. Don't care as much about sneaking out for an hour or two as you did."

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

Fay King Praises Attractive Girl Workers

By FAY KING

THE other morning I took a long walk. It was 8:30. In every direction workers were on their way to stores, offices, factories or whatever particular place they fill in the machinery of this great city!

Shop windows were being washed, brass work being polished. Windows dressed. Sidewalks swept.

Oh, there was a great bustle and busy preparations going on everywhere.

It seemed to me there was a smile on every face and a spring in every walk. I tell you there is a thrill in knowing that your part is important to the turn of the city's wheels.

The working girl is no longer a weary looking creature. She is gay and bright and attractive!

The girl who works carries herself with the same dignity and looks as smart as the young ladies of luxury who come later in the day to shop and dine.

I understand that a movie scout, seeking among unknowns for a new leading lady, did not have much success. I cannot believe that!

I could find thousands of girls who would make attractive heroines in any movies!

But I doubt if many of them would be interested. That is probably where the trouble lies!

SCENT POISON PLOT; EXHUME MAN'S BODY

MULLENS, W. Va., June 6.—The body of Tollison Graham, of Basin, W. Va., alleged poison plot victim, was exhumed yesterday for an analysis of the stomach. The dead man's wife, Eurel McKinney, McKinney's 14-year-old brother and W. R. Mills, Mrs. Graham's father, were arrested by county authorities, following a report that Graham died after drinking an alleged poison potion, mixed, authorities claim, by the elder McKinney. Mrs. Graham and McKinney are charged with conspiracy to kill, and McKinney's brother, and Mrs. Graham's father are held as material witnesses. Police claim, the younger McKinney told them he saw his brother mix the poison with whisky, which he said was given to Graham.

FAMILY HURT IN CRASH, ASKS $21,000 DAMAGES

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 6.—A suit for damages totaling $21,000 was filed here yesterday by William A. Miller, of Claysville, against I. E. Narrigan, of Wheeling, proprietor of the Wheeling-Pittsburgh Truck Service. The sum is asked for injuries suffered by the plaintiff and members of his family when a large truck of the firm crashed into an automobile in which they were riding just west of here. Miller, his wife and two children were injured seriously.

WASHINGTON BUSY WITH OWN DANCE MARATHON, ATTRACTING COUPLES FROM MANY COUNTIES IN WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

While Pittsburgh, for a day or so, has a 'breathing spell' between dance marathons, Washington, Pa., industriously follows the changing complex of its own endurance contest. Couples are entered from many counties in western Pennsylvania and some of them, if fortune favors them in this dance, look forward to vying with the best that New York City can produce in that 'great International Championship' to be staged by Tex Rickard and Milton D. (Dance) Crandall. Here we have a number of the couples who undertook the Washington dance.

MUSSOLINI & THE LIFE STORY of THE MAN OF DESTINY.

Mussolini Wounded Many Times Fighting in War

Visited by King After He Is Shot 42 Times in Single Engagement

What Has Gone Before

From boyhood Mussolini was rebellious. School duties irked him. When he became a teacher the hard routine of the calling became distasteful to him and he decided to travel abroad. In Switzerland radical tendencies developed in the self-exiled youth and he was expelled from the country. As an irredentist he continued to get into trouble. He establishes a newspaper and his two-fisted initiative wins him greater popularity. He advocated an intervention with Italy in favor of Belgium and France. The nation goes up in arms at the beginning of the war.

Now Go On With the Story.

Rejected as Volunteer

By VITTORIO DE FIORI

CHAPTER XIV.

AS SOON as war was declared, Mussolini applied as a volunteer. His application was rejected, and he had to wait until his class was called to the colors. This did not occur until September 2. He left the direction of his paper in charge of his most trusted assistant, Giuseppe De Falco, and departed for the front. In his last editorial, addressed to his followers, he said:

BENITO MUSSOLINI

"We, who are preparing to undergo the hardships and dangers of war, should like to feel that our backs are guarded. Keep your eyes open. Strike, if necessary, and strike hard. Don't give a minute's respite to the jackals and the traitors. Fight as we shall fight. That is the program I leave you."

He began his fighting career as a private in the Bersaglieri, Italy's renowned light infantry. He took part in several front line engagements. His colonel offered him a safe berth in the rear, with the mission of writing the history of his regiment. Mussolini replied: "I came her to fight, not to write!" And he stayed in the trenches.

"Because of his exemplary activity, his fine spirit and his serenity of mind; always first in every enterprise of labor or daring; contemptuous of peril, zealous and scrupulous in fulfilling his duty."

This high-sounding eulogy is only the motivation for his promotion to corporal. He never got beyond the rank of sergeant. His Socialistic past was against him. Once he was admitted to a speed training course for officers, but six days later the order came to send him back to the trenches, where he was needed. Neither surprised nor grieved, he returned to his fighting post.

Realistic War Diary

During his few moments of leisure, he wrote a war diary, whose simple, analytic, realistic pages not only give a clear vision of war in all its fearful reality, but produce a deep and lasting impression in the mind of the reader, leaving a furrow of horror and pity which not even the passing years can erase.

In the trenches, face to face with imminent death, in the mud, beneath the rain, at the sight of soldiers who alternately prayed and cursed, the grandeur of the religion which radiates from Rome to the entire world first dawned upon him.

A few years later, when he spoke in Parliament on the Roman question, he astonished everyone by saying:

"There is a problem to which I wish to call the attention of the Party's representatives. That problem is the possibility of relations, not merely between us Fascists and the Catholic Party, but between Italy and the Vatican.

"From the age of 15 to 25 we have all drunk at the spring of Anti-Clericalism; we have all hated the cruel old Vatican she-wolf of which Carducci spoke, if I am not mistaken, in his ode to Ferrara; we have all heard about a 'sinister Pontiff,' as opposed to the august soothsayer of truth, and about the 'black-haired woman of the Tiber' who pointed out a nameless heap of ruins to the pilgrim who ventured toward St. Peter's.

"But all these things, which are most brilliant in the field of literature, are anachronistic, to say the least, as far as we unprejudiced Fascists are concerned.

"I maintain that the Imperial Latin traditions of Rome are represented today by Catholicism. If, as Mommsen said 30 years ago, one cannot think of Rome without thinking of universality, I believe and affirm that the only universal idea in existence today comes from the Vatican.

"And, frankly speaking, I experience a feeling of regret whenever I hear of the founding of a new national church, because each national church means millions of people who no longer look to Rome and to Italy for spiritual guidance. Wherefore, I suggest that, provided the Vatican renounces its dreams of temporal power (and I think it is on the way to do so), Italy should place at the Vatican's disposal its schools, churches, hospitals and whatever else it may need.

Matters of Pride

"The development of Catholicism in the world, the increase of the four hundred million souls that converge toward Rome from all parts of the world, are matters of great interest and pride to us Italians. How can a millenary race, enriched and polluted by innumerable blends and invasions and scattered to the four corners of the globe, achieve full unity, unless it strengthens within itself the consciousness of its own universality and eternity? How can a nation be strong in adversity and great in victory if it gives itself up to the fallacious hedonism of selfish appetites and fails to translate its patriotism in terms of the absolute: God?

"The imperial strength of Catholic, universal Rome, of which Christ and St. Paul proclaimed themselves citizens, is a factor of our national unity which we cannot afford to disregard."

In the face of death, Mussolini was a constant source of comfort and encouragement to his comrades. He was always first where danger called. He was wounded several times, returning to the front each time as soon as his wounds had healed. His deeds of valor were repeatedly mentioned in the war bulletins of his regiment.

Meanwhile the hatred of the Socialists for their ex-comrade had by no means died out. A soldier in Mussolini's platoon received a letter from the Socialist leader of his village couched in the following terms:

"We have learned that you are fighting at the front with Mussolini, the notorious renegade. You would do me a personal favor, not to mention the service you would render to the cause, if you could manage to shoot that traitor in the back."

But soldiers, under hostile fire, develop into loyal comrades. The Socialist showed the letter to Mussolini.

"People who stay at home," the latter remarked with a smile, "particularly if they are slackers, have very strange ideas."

One day the explosion of a trench-mortar inflicted forty-two wounds

WHY BUILD BRIDGE "S" CURVE?

KEEP DOWN COST, SAY ENGINEERS

With the completion of the Glassport-Clairton Bridge in sight, residents at the Clairton end have raised the question of practicability of the "S" approach, still under construction. They say the approach should have been built without curves, running straight to State street. County engineers, however, point out that State street would have had to be raised, necessitating heavy property damages which would have added to the cost of the span. The bridge work was begun in 1926 and will have cost the county $1,401,000.

Will Calls Plane Real Fiji Need -At Mealtime

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 6.—When four men in a three-motored plane and carrying all that gas can fly 3,200 miles over the ocean in one hop and keep in communication with the world every minute of the time, why, aviation has really arrived.

WILL ROGERS.

If I went to the Fiji Islands that's how I would want to land—in a plane—and be ready to get away in case they looked hungry. Yours,

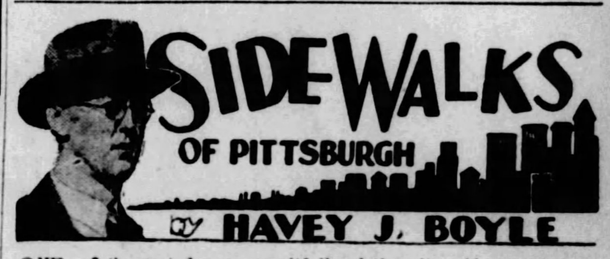
LIGHT SHOWERS TO END LONG DELUGE HERE

The three-day deluge is nearing a finish, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said today. "While there may be showers tonight and possibly tomorrow morning, they will be light," said he.

Since early Monday, when the rain began, the fall here has totaled 2.45 inches, the records show. The rivers at the Point had reached 16.2 feet this morning and likely will go to 18 feet early tomorrow, Brotzman predicted.

A severe electrical storm late yesterday afternoon interfered with light and power service in several sections of the city. Downtown buildings had to resort to candles for illumination when lightning crippled cables and other equipment of the Duquesne Light Company on Brunots Island. Torrential rain flooded many streets and clogged sewers.



ONE of the most dangerous pitfalls of the city seldom gets any attention. This pitfall is the wood block pitfall. Why there is any paving done with wood blocks is something that a lot of anxious motorists ask themselves every day and night that rain falls. Compared to wood block which becomes wet, ice is as rough as the back of the fretful porcupine. That there never has been a No Wood Block Week in conjunction with the various campaigns to make motorism and pedestrianism safe for democracy often has been a wonder here.

Fortunately, not many streets are paved with wood blocks, but one is altogether too many. Not privy to scientific data on the subject of its long or short life compared to asphalt or stone or brick it is impossible for us to touch on this phase, but that the wooden pavement causes many a slip between the front fender of Car A and the innocent rear of Car B just ahead is a fact that every motorist knows as well as he knows the high cost of parking downtown.

AND while indulging in this wave of civic reform this might be a good place to inquire why so many houses are without the street numbers designated. An authority on city ordinances says there is a law compelling all houses to be numbered, but this is a law that is not lived up to generally.

* * *

The cost of parking automobiles downtown, by the way, has been reduced in some of the lots. The former charge of 50 cents has been reduced to 35 cents. A monthly charge of $8 is made and you can drive in and out as often as the spirit moves you.

* * *

YOU may not believe it, but the following conversation occurred:

"So you are a newspaper fellow?"

"Yes, I work for a daily."

"Well, my nephew is taking up editor."

"Studying journalism?" we suggested.

"No, he's studying editor."

"Well, in some places," we volunteered, "they call it a course in journalism, but no matter, it amounts to the same thing."

"Yes, he is studying editor, and I tell you he's a dandy. I just wish you'd see some of the books he writes."

"Well, that's fine. There are too few writers now, the critics say."

"But this boy is about the best. He's only 17, but now he can write. I'll tell you something. A man from New York wanted him to quit studying editor to go to New York right away to take a job there as editor."

"He's pretty young for that."

"Yes, he's young, but he's good. This man wanted him to become the editor of Liberty Magazine. You've heard of Liberty Magazine?"

"Yes."

"Well, that would be pretty good, now, wouldn't it—be editor at 17?"

"It would be a world's record, nothing less."

All this, evidently, goes to show how the journalistic schools are developing talent. If the thing keeps up mothers will be bringing their children down to the newspaper office, lifting them onto high chairs which will be supplied the copy desks, and leaving them a bottle and a nipple to amuse themselves when they are not editing copy, writing heads and borrowing cigarets from the reporters.

In time to come, the managing editor, likely, will be a boy 8 or 9 years old, who will ship out between editions to fly his kite. This studying editor must be the real stuff.

BOTH COMIC AND GRAND OPERAS TO GO ON AIR

DONIZETTI'S opera "La Favorita" has been chosen as this week's offering by the National Grand Opera Ensemble to be broadcast through the Red Network, including WCAE, tonight at 10:30 o'clock. The opera contains some of Donizetti's finest solo and ensemble work and the title part is written for the mezzo-soprano or contralto voice contrary to the tradition existing in the composer's day that the prima donna should be a soprano. It is set in Castile, Spain, and the action takes place about the year 1340.

"The Singing Girl," a comic opera by Victor Herbert, with Jessica Dragonette, soprano, and Colin O'More, tenor, in the leads, will be presented during the first half of the Philco hour, and the remaining time will be given over to excerpts from "Chu Chin Chow," "Blossom Time" and "Sally," musical comedies of recent years. The Philco hour will be broadcast through the Blue Network, including KDKA, at 9 o'clock.

A program of Southern airs by the Sylvania Foresters will be broadcast through KDKA and other Blue Network stations at 8:30 o'clock. "Old Folks at Home" and "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny," reminiscent of old slave days in the South, will be heard, as well as "Ole Uncle Moon," "What Kind O' Shoes You Gonna Wear?" and "A Little Coon's Prayer." An instrumental duo will be heard also.

"June Weddings," so prominent in the society columns during the month of roses and brides, will influence the program of the Ipana Troubadours to be broadcast through WCAE and other stations associated with the Red Network at 9 o'clock. The Troubadours will present a musical romance depicting the "Dawn of Love," and the various phases of its development up to and including the wedding ceremony. This will be followed by a "Honeymoon March" to be spent "Down in Old Havana Town."

Edward MacDowell's popular "To a Wild Rose" has been arranged as a quartet for four violins, and will be played by the Court Violin Quartet, with piano accompaniment, in the At Home With the Masters program, which will be broadcast through WJAS and associated stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System at 10:30 o'clock. At Home With the Masters program has heretofore been heard on Friday nights. Another feature will be a violin and viola duet, "Saraoande con Variazioni," by Handel-Halvorsen, which will be played by Victor Bay, violinist, and Mitza Stillman, viola player.

COUNTY PLANTS SHADE TREES

A precedent is being established by county commissioners in an effort to beautify main county thoroughfares.

In three months 1,000 oriental plane trees have been planted along Duncan avenue extension and Babcock boulevard. Yesterday commissioners announced that 1,000 or more trees would be set out along other roads and boulevards in the fall.

Some time ago $5,000 was marked by the commissioners for the purchase of shade trees. Yesterday commissioners announced that a fund would be provided annually for planting trees throughout the county.

SHARON DETECTIVE'S SON GETS CIGARET EVIDENCE

EX-PARKER CITY FOLK TO PICNIC

Former residents of Parker and the vicinity will hold their annual re-union next Saturday afternoon at the Athletic Shelter House, Schenley Park. All who lived in the vicinity of old Parker City have been especially invited to the re-union which will be in the form of a basket picnic.

The gathering is being held in the shelter house so that possible inclement weather will not interfere with it. Members of the committee in charge have arranged transportation from Carnegie Music Hall to the shelter house.

The Trouble with Tommy ... sick, stubborn, or just plain stupid?

It's your fault—the trouble with Tommy. Perhaps that isn't quite accurate. You didn't decree that his eager muscles must stay quiet, relaxed, for hours each day in school . . . You didn't create that curious finicky appetite of growing children which, despite all your care, may mean overeating one day and undereating the next.

But you can see that his body is kept clean and free from food's fermenting poisons. You can help that sluggish system to help itself. And you can do it with none of the coaxing, none of the worrying, that you always go through when you give ordinary laxatives to your child.

YOU probably share the distrust of most intelligent people for ordinary laxatives, from health foods that take weeks to act, to cathartics that tire and wrack the system. And you are naturally worried over the problem of safeguarding your child . . .

Feen-a-mint is different!

You don't swallow it hastily—you chew it, exactly as you would a delicious bit of chewing gum. And as you chew, its tasteless, yet almost magically effective laxative principle begins to mix with the mouth fluids and actually becomes a part of the digestive process!

So, instead of striking the body a blow without warning, as it were, Feen-a-mint gently helps the system to help itself!

Results are amazing. A new vitality and a sense of fitness—a fresh, clear-eyed, up-in-the-morning-early feeling, as hundreds of thousands of men and women know. You will find this wonderful laxative at your druggist's now. Take a Feen-a-mint tablet at any time, confident of feeling a different person in six to eight hours.

BUGS BAER Says

THE twin political factions are going into this campaign without a slogan.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Somehow, the public doesn't plaster any trust in campaign adages since "He kept us out of the war" got us into it.

Coolidge wasn't such a much with his prescription for 1924.

Keep cool with Cal.

The boys kept cool. They froze.

Remember the Maine. That was all right in 1898, but since investigations started to get popular the boys would rather remember the Leviathan or any other boat that sails at midnight.

There isn't much you can do with Hoover. He lost a chance for a rhyme when he forgot to get born in Bancouver.

You might say, "Hoover, Hoover, he's my shoover." But by the time you figured the meaning of a shoover you would forget what a Hoover was.

Al Smith's publicity dragoons are up against the same thing. The nearest rhyme to Smith is Jones.

They cried "Al, Al, he's my pal." But then they found that he would never be elected on the ratio of two Als to one pal.

You might yell, "Smitty, Smitty, what a pity," which would be sympathetic but not boastful.

There is always a chance to stampede a convention with some good, nursery doggerel. After the third day all the delegates would rather sing than talk.

Headquarters will pay one hundred thousand bills for something like "Happiness in every deadlock," or "Not a delegate in a carload."

This campaign is stymied without a trademark. Ever since 1800, partisans have insisted upon the privilege of banging their heads against a wall motto.

COURT FREES PRISONER ON HABEAS CORPUS WRIT

Judge Ambrose B. Reid granted a writ of habeas corpus in Common Pleas Court yesterday for the release from jail of Anthony J. Doern, who said he had been held for five days on a charge of being a suspicious person, without receiving a hearing. His attorney, J. Lincoln Cohen asserted that he was not guilty of the charge.

Why People Have Burning Feet

All In Joints, Says Maine Dr.

"What fools we mortals be."

All these years we have been trying to help thousands of footsore people by bathing and powdering the skin when all the time the real trouble is in the bones, ligaments and cartilages—

Or, to be short, in the joints.

There are 26 bones in the foot covered with cartilage and connected with ligaments and they have a tremendous amount of work to do.

The slightest strain on one little ligament from being "on the feet" too much inflames the whole foot, causing soreness and burning, aching and general misery.

Just try a remedy that is compounded for such troubles only—such as Joint-Ease, which every druggist carries, and see how quickly your sore, tired, inflamed and tortured feet will get well and strong and sturdy again.

Give them a good rubbing tonight with Joint-Ease, a penetrating emollient that gets right in to the source of the trouble and banishes all agony overnight—while you sleep.

And, remember, when Joint-Ease gets in all foot agony gets out—quick—A tube for 60 cents—Every drug store in America.

upon him, of which three were quite serious. While he was lying in the field-hospital at Ronchi, Sergeant Mussolini was visited by friends, generals and rulers.

"Hello, old boy!" exclaimed an old acquaintance on seeing him, "So these confounded 'minnies' minded you!"

"You fire them off all the time, and they occasionally get even by firing you off," he laughed back.

He was not even unconscious when they had picked him up. They say that he was gazing about him, in the midst of his dead and dying comrades, with the blood trickling down his face and his eyes just as fiery, wrathful and keen as though he had been addressing one of his favorite audiences. They pulled innumerable splinters out of him. His sufferings, in the course of the process, did not draw a single groan from his lips.

While he lay in a burning fever, with his eyes dilated and his teeth clenched, he was visited by the King. Victor Emanuel tried to say a few words of comfort, but Mussolini interrupted him:

"Reserve your kind words for the other wounded who are dying in this hospital, Your Majesty. I still have to fight for my country."

When the King left his bedside, he was heard to murmur:

"That man will go very, very far!"

CHAPTER XV.

MUSSOLINI, the Socialist, had a passionate love for his country even then. One has to be far away from one's country, in a foreign land, in order really to appreciate and love it. The gods of the Fatherland often tramp the roads of exile. Frequently patriotism is felt more keenly by exiles than by those who quietly remain at home.

Mussolini had to spend several months in bed. He stoically underwent operations and physical suffering. When convalescing, he left the hospital on leave. Even his bitterest enemies grew silent on seeing him return home so pale and mangled and yet so impatient to get back to the front.

But he was honorably discharged because of physical disability. Whereupon, he gave himself up body and soul once more to his "Popolo d'Italia."

Fight to Finish

When he heard of the Caporetto disaster, he succumbed to a severe nervous breakdown. For seven days and seven nights he did not close his eyes, and his friends finally had to have recourse to morphine injections. In his fury against those responsible for the catastrophe, Mussolini decided to come to a final break with every remnant of Socialism, and his paper, which had hitherto borne the sub-title, "Socialist Daily," now became the "Organ of the Fighters and Producers," uncompromisingly taking its stand against all movements, parties, and principles contrary to the nation's ideals.

He urged and encouraged the Italian youth to fight to the finish. Foreseeing the ultimate victory, he wrote in October, 1918:

"A great battle is about to take place in the Venetian plain. In decisive clashes between nations, the roadways and battlefields of history never change. The error of the Allies lies in their having allowed themselves to be bottled up in the trenches by the ponderous German spirit, unelastic and antidynamic because it lacks creative genius.

"A tactical warfare has been carried on everywhere, save perhaps on the Russian front. We have had a great deal of dilatory tactics and no maneuvering or strategy whatsoever. Decisive defeats are inflicted on the open plain, in pitched battles, not by laying siege to earthen fortresses. A break in the enemy's lines will result in a great battle that will drive the foe back not merely to his starting-point, but to the heart of his own country."

On November 2, he presented an extraordinary thesis:

"Will the masterpiece of our history and of world history take place on the banks of the Italian river after which it will be named? Will the new great clash between Nordics and Mediterraneans, between civilization and barbarism, take place in the valley of the Piave? Is it written in the book of fate that the defeat of Pan-Germanism, begun upon the banks of a river of France, is to end upon the banks of a river of Italy? We shall know within a few weeks, perhaps within a few days.

"In the meanwhile, let our hearts flutter with hope. The harassing questions of yesterday were: 'Shall we have enough coal? Shall we have enough bread? Shall we have enough firewood?' But today the citizens ask themselves: 'Shall we have enough iron, enough shells, enough bayonets?'

"We shall endure cold and hunger. They do not matter. Invasion is far worse than cold and hunger; it is humiliation. We will not endure that. We want to win! We must win! We shall win!"

Ultimate Victory

Once more the morale, spirit and courage of the Italians overcame the superior numbers and brute force of the enemy, this time decisively. Italy's gray-green hosts smashed the Austrian line at Vittorio Veneto and turned the imperial defeat into an unparalleled rout, astounding even the Allies, who had little faith in Italian valor. The invaded provinces and the unredeemed lands speedily saw the Austrian hordes hard pressed in their flight by the victorious Italian army. Caporetto's disgrace had been more than effaced by the glorious, radiant triumph of Vittorio Veneto.

On November 4, 1918, Trent and Trieste were occupied. Austria sued for an armistice. After the immense holocaust of 700,000 Italian lives, sacrificed on the altar of the nation's unity, after four long years of silent suffering and uncomplaining grief, the war came to a victorious end.

Mussolini wrote:

"The great hour has come! In this hour of divine joy, tumultuous emotion suspends the beating of our hearts and causes a lump to rise in our throats. Our long and weary Calvary, finally crowned by triumph, draws tears of joy from eyes that are tired from weeping. Let one immense shout resound from streets and squares, from the Alps to Sicily: Long live Italy!"

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

by FRANK L. PACKARD

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up in a fragile craft by Capt. "Scarfare" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives the various articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The Idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. Hidden in the hold of the ship he overhears five Chinamen plotting. The East Indian "Holy Man" is stabbed to death by one of the Chinamen. The Holy Man turns out to be Erna's brother, and she accuses Bob of the murder. Bob' life is threatened by the Chinamen. Bob is captured and left bound on the sinking boat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

IT would be a God, not of justice and mercy, and infinite love, but a God of stark and abominable cruelty Who would have done this—fling her, a white woman, as a prey to the maws of these yellow brutes!

One strand was severed—another. Teeth clenched, the sweat pouring from him, he sawed with bitter persistence at the rope. Now and then, unable to see in the darkness, it was his wrists, not the rope, that made contact with the broken edge of the plate. The blood poured from them. The plate was sharp enough for that!

Another strand parted—and now the rope itself.

His hands were free now. It was but the work of an instant to loosen the knots around his ankles and shake off the rope from his legs. And now he was on his feet. There was no numbness in his legs. He had not been long enough bound, and, besides, his own struggles had kept his blood even violently in circulation. He was conscious of a sense of relief that this was so, as he swung the door open, and sprang out on deck.

The cabin door opened to starboard; and the one remaining boat, if it remained at all now, was around on the other side of the ship—but, scarcely a step from the cabin door, Bob Kingsley halted. The pajama-clad form of Capt. Karler lay there before him. Yes! He had counted on this! The revolver was still clutched in the dead commander's outstretched hand. Quickly, swiftly, Bob Kingsley possessed himself of the weapon. Cartridges! The revolver might be empty—every shot in it fired! More than likely! But Capt. Karler, in so critical a situation, would almost surely have provided himself with an extra supply. There was only one pocket in a suit of pajamas. He felt quickly in under the captain's body, his fingers searching with feverish haste for the breast pocket. Yes, here it was! And the cartridges, too. A box of them!

He was working with mad haste now. He opened the box and thrust the cartridges loose into his pocket, as he started on a run for the other side of the deck. And as he ran he "broke" the revolver, ejecting the shells, whether good or bad, from its chambers, and reloaded the weapon. It perhaps retarded him for a few seconds, but he dared not risk an already exploded shell. His life, and therefore hers, might depend upon it just as surely as it would depend on—

He hung suddenly, gray of face and motionless, against the port side of the forward deck-house, the revolver dangling aimlessly in his hand.

The boat was gone!

CHAPTER XXIII.

FOR a fraction of a second, for the space of time it takes a watch to tick, he stood there as though mentally and physically stunned. And then virility of both mind and body surged back upon him, and he leaped across the deck. The boat, it was true, had disappeared from sight, but it was n t free of the ship—the davit tackles were still taut!

He reached the edge of the deck, and, clutching one of the davits, leaned out over the ship's side. There it was! The boat, about half-filled with Malays, and being rapidly lowered, was some ten or fifteen feet below him. The Chinamen were manning the tackles—Chen-shu, in the stern, was shouting orders and directions, his voice as shrill now as the screaming of a wild gull that it might carry over the sweep of the wind.

Instantly Bob Kingsley jumped.

He landed, sprawling among the occupants, almost in the amidships of the boat; but the next instant he had picked himself up, and found a seat for himself. The Chinamen had seen him leap from the boat deck, of course; Chens-hu had seen him—but they were far too busy now in an effort to save their own lives to pay any heed to him. That would come afterwards—if there were an afterwards!

A confusion of pictures, kaleidoscopic, so swift in sequence as to be almost simultaneous, visualized themselves before his eyes—telegraphing an equal confusion of messages to his brain, some of which seemed, in the face of the others, to be of so little consequence that they were merely an absurd intrusion. Just forward of him was a woman with a young child of 4 or 5 in her arms. The woman clung to the child, and she also clung wildly to a man beside her. They were obviously a family. What possible difference did that make! Chen-shu was standing up in the stern. The other Chinamen were still at the tackles. Some of the Malays had apparently been told off to man the oars and were even now fending off from the ship's side. The boat was almost at water-level now—the crest of the waves licking at her keel. There was a little lee here—but very little.

And then Bob Kingsley smiled queerly as he became conscious that he was sitting there passively and doing nothing—and with, not an oar, but a revolver in his hand. A bit futile for the moment—a revolver! He placed it in his pocket. There wern't any more oars, however; they all seemed to have been allotted—even to the Chinamen at the tackles who each appeared to have one ready at hand for instant use the moment the boat was cast off. There wasn't anything to do. Chen-shu screamed out suddenly, shrilly from the stern. There was a swish of water, a curiously unbalanced rocking motion—and then, the tackles loosed, the boat shot forward half buried in a foaming wave. The Chinamen had snatched up their oars and, with the Malays, were rowing madly. Spray, like a thick mist, blotted out the Monotah. A roar and thunder of breaking water, louder somehow than it had been when heard from the ship's deck, deadened every other sound.

The smile was still on Bob Kingsley's lips, but it was one of grim tribute now to Chen-shu's seamanship. If Chen-shu could successfully accomplish the perilous maneuvers of getting the boat away from the ship's side in a boiling sea, Chen-shu could safely be entrusted with the rest if any man could. But the Baalu Reef was not the Monotah!

They were into it now. And now suddenly the boat seemed to be tossed high in the air, and then, as though on a pivot, it spun twice with dizzy speed completely around. The next instant, half over on its side, it was hurled downward like a stone from a catapult, smashing against a rearing wall of water with a shock that flung Bob Kingsley from his seat to the bottom of the boat. Other forms tumbled on top of him, struggling forms, shrieking forms, forms crazy with terror. Water poured over the side upon him. His face was buried in it. He could not breathe. But there was one worse off than he was—a Malay pinioned beneath him. The man made no effort to extricate himself. He would drown, of course. There must be a foot or two of water in the boat. Something wrong with the poor devil!

Every one was struggling. Queer that the boat hadn't capsized! A miracle! If she shipped much more water it would be the end of her anyway. The pressure above lessened. He sat up. Others were crouched and huddled around him. It was safer here in the bottom of the boat. The boat was twisting, pitching with swift, jerky, violent motions—being toyed with, made sport of—flung from one wave crest after another far down into a succession of seething hollows.

The Malay still lay in the bottom of the boat, his face in the water. Bob Kingsley, sitting in the water, raised the man's head, and supported it against his breast.

The oars were still manned. Toothpicks! One of them broke now. Chen-shu seemed to have lost a vast deal of his nerve and all of his self-sufficiency—he still screeched orders, but his voice was jerky, a quaver of fear in it now. He, Bob Kingsley, had paid tribute to the beast too soon, it would seem. Seaman or not, the man was a murdering swine—and naturally as yellow at core as he was of face. More water over the side! Nothing to bail with!

The man in his arms stirred, raised a hand and passed it weakly across his eyes. Bob Kingsley stared into the other's face. There was a bruise several inches long across the man's forehead. He had struck his head, of course, against a thwart or something when he had been flung from his seat. Been stunned—nothing more.

Again the man stirred—and now in turn he stared into Bob Kingsley's face.

"You'll be all right after a bit," said Bob Kingsley; and added grimly: "Keep quiet for a moment until your strength comes back—you may need it all before we're out of this!"

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Lillian Catechizes Madge on Eleanor Lincoln's Question About Dicky

AT Eleanor Lincoln's request that I tell her how to get into communication with Dicky, there flamed within me the old primitive jealous anger which has been my secret bane ever since my marriage to my joyous, irresponsible Peter Pan. Nearly always I have been able to control it, and no one, save perhaps Lillian, whose insight is almost psychic, ever has guessed the fierceness of the struggle which I often have waged with my baser, meaner nature for dignity and self-control.

Another emotion was shaking me also even as I listened to the beautifully modulated voice of my young neighbor. That was fright, actual fear of something which my jealousy signified. If I could be racked with such mental torture as this, the embers of my love for my husband had not become dead ashes as I had expected when after the tragedy of his awful doubt of me we had agreed to a pact of apparent comradeship but real estrangement.

Did I want them to be reblown into flame? The question raised itself starkly, but I knew that I must put it aside until I could be alone. The young mistress of The Larches was waiting for my answer, and I must not let her mistake my hesitation for unwillingness to give her the information she wished.

"I was just wondering what would be quickest and surest," I said, banally enough, but confident that my face or voice betrayed no hint of the way my pulses were behaving. "You see, my husband is a very uncertain quantity. He is supposed to be at his studio, but he is apt to be called out of town at a minute's notice and go in half that time."

I smiled at my own exaggeration, and she gave me a little perfunctory laugh in answer.

"However," I went on, "I imagine the studio address will be the best, for he always goes there immediately upon returning from the city. I'll write it down for you."

"Thank you so much," she said as I handed her the card with Dicky's studio address written upon it. But neither then or afterward upon the porch while with evident enjoyment she drank the fruit punch and ate the cakes which Katie served us, did she give any explanation of her reason for wishing Dicky's address. But I knew, of course, that she must intend to write him her consent to pose for the drawing with Fedor which she had before refused to him.

"Was she pretty trying?" Lillian asked solicitously when Miss Lincoln had driven away. "You look all in."

I let down the bars suddenly. I had almost reached the breaking point in my interview with Eleanor Lincoln, and besides there is never any use in trying to hide anything from Lillian's keen eyes. She knows every convolution of my soul.

"No, she was a very good pupil," I said slowly. "She has a good mind and knows how to use it. But—she wanted Dicky's address."

"Did you give it to her? But of course you did. There was nothing else to do. Did she condescend to give you a reason for wishing it?"

"No, but just before asking me for it, she wanted to know if the author for whom Dicky was making those drawings had any vogue outside this country."

"What?" Lillian exclaimed, sitting up tensely. "Say that again with pauses, dearie, pauses."

I repeated my young neighbor's question and Lillian ticked off each slowly spoken word on her fingers in the childish fashion which she sometimes affects.

"Another seam finished," she said cryptically.

"I am certainly thankful for what Ten Herbs did for me, as I had tried many different kinds of medicines without getting much relief from my suffering," was the statement of Mrs. Adam Wagner, 858 Suismon Street, North Side, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine to crowds of people.

MRS. ADAM WAGNER

"I used to suffer with indigestion," Mrs. Wagner continued. "Everything I ate seemed to sour and form gas, which was very distressing. I was troubled with headaches and hot spells for two years, and had rheumatism in my knees for six months. "Ten Herbs gave me satisfactory relief from rheumatism, headaches and hot spells. I am no longer bothered with indigestion or gas on the stomach. Even the first bottle of Ten Herbs made me feel much better, and after using three bottles, I felt like a new person. I am more than glad to endorse your medicine to the public."

Many women and men in this city are learning the value of Ten Herbs as a tonic for weak, run-down systems and sluggishness of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. The effect of using Ten Herbs is far-reaching. It will not permit waste matter and impurities to remain in the system, and usually promptly relieves the common ailments resulting from disordered stomach, liver and bowels. Ten Herbs benefits and invigorates those organs, restoring normal, healthy action.

The demand for Ten Herbs in this city is increasing by leaps and bounds. It probably is the most widely discussed medicine that has ever been introduced here. There is no other medicine like it—and that accounts for the surprising relief it has given many in this section after they had given up hope of ever being well, having tried medicine after medicine without being relieved.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

SENATE PROBES SMITH "FAVORITISM" CHARGE

TWO WITNESSES ASKED ABOUT CONTRACTS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 6. — The Senate presidential funds committee inquired today into charges of Senator Heflin (Dem.), of Alabama, that "favoritism" was shown in awarding New York City contracts in return for financial support to Gov. Al Smith's presidential candidacy.

In a Senate speech, Heflin declared the Todd Contruction and Repair Company and the W. F. Kenney Company were getting a large share of the contracts and that Tammany was getting a "cut." The heads of the two concerns contributed to Smith's campaign and testified they did it out of "love" for the Governor.

Two witnesses, Albert Goldman, commissioner of plants and structures of New York City, and John J. Dorman, fire commissioner, were questioned about the charges.

Goldman testified that out of $12,522,102 spent by the city during the past 10 years for boat construction and repair work, the Todd company got $2,290,926 in contracts.

Other contractors got a total of $8,500,000, and the city itself did work totaling $4,000,000, he said.

Dorman declared the fire department gave the Todd companies a total of $293,599 in contracts in the 10 years, and the Kenney company $224,537, out of a grand total of $7,926,356. The Hickey company, another mentioned by Heflin as having benefitted through Smith's friendship, got $49,844 in 10 years.

Chairman Steiwer called Dorman's attention to a letter received by the committee from the Highland Cab Company, charging the only gasoline tank truck and cab permitted to meet the specifications of the fire department was made by a company in which Kenney had an interest.

"That's absolutely untrue," Dorman replied.

"I never heard of the Highland Cab Company, but I can't understand why any builder can't meet the specifications."

He said he knew of no company manufacturing gasoline tank trucks in which Kenney was interested. All tanks permitted on the streets of New York, Dorman said must conform to safety requirements set up by the Board of Fire Underwriters and the city's Bureau of Combustibles.

The specifications are public, he added, and any manufacturer can make a truck to conform to them which would be licensed by the city.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE OLD MAN PLAYS

By RICHARD G. SWARINGEN

THE blue eyes and round face of Garrett Morse wore a look of animation, and his plump legs twinkled along merrily. Always first at his office, he was even earlier than usual this morning.

Entering, he closed the door; then crossed the room and opened two windows. Removing his hat and coat, he took from a pocket a paper-covered book. This he opened and laid upon his desk, where he bent and studied a series of diagrams on its two visible pages.

Then he assumed a position with feet straight and close together, shoulders back, chest forward, arms at side. Inhaling deeply, he slowly raised his arms until the palms met, straight above his head. Keeping his knees together, he bent forward from the hips until the tips of his fingers touched the floor.

The strain on stiff muscles wrung from his a groan. Garrett loosened his belt, his pink face wore a look of surprise. But he kept on, with some of the same dogged perseverance that had placed Morse desks and chairs in so many offices throughout the land.

Again the door opened. Molly Egan stood staring a second, then came in and closed it quickly, as though afraid someone else might see what she saw. Molly was Garrett's secretary. Garrett smiled and nodded, undisturbed by the repressed amazement in the girl's clear brown eyes. Some folks considered Molly plain. There was about her a big, wholesome womanliness, a something more satisfying than mere pulchritude.

"Taking my daily dozen," Garrett explained airily

Molly looked at the open windows and shivered. She could make her disapproval felt without words. Garrett whisked the cover off her typewriter. It was a machine of standard size; but he raised it with one hand above his head; lowered it and changed hands; raised it again. He put it down, grinning boyishly.

"The old man isn't entirely decrepit, eh?"

"You're not old!" Molly spoke with some asperity, and paused in evident surprise at having done so. "Well, how old are you?"

"Forty," said Garrett; "just forty."

"Humph! I'll be forty, myself in"—Molly hesitated; then added defiantly—"in eleven years."

"Ah!" Garrett looked surprised "Don't see how you've managed to stay single so long. A woman like you—"

"Thanks awfully," Molly laughed dryly, and removed her hat. "Are we going to do any work today?"

"Sure." Garret went to close the windows, and said casually over his shoulder: "I'm thinking of getting married myself."

His back was towards her. He id not see the surprise in olly's eyes, nor note that she t down abruptly with her coat ll on and hurriedly ran a sheet paper into the typewriter.

"Jim Duncan wants two new machines in his department," she reminded him crisply. "You promised to let him know today."

"That's right," Garrett sat down, concentrating on business with an effort. "Make at note to tell him I can't afford them now."

For as much as half an hour Garrett devoted himself to business. Then, in the middle of a sentence, he broke off to exclaim:

"Say, I want to show you something!"

There was a boyish eagerness in his movements as he unlocked a drawer of his desk and took out a pasteboard box. Beneath it Molly glimpsed what appeared to be a large folder photograph. The box, when opened, disclosed a black morocco case. Garrett opened this.

"Oh, my!" gasped Molly. "Pearls!"

"Pretty, eh?" beamed Garrett.

"Pretty?" Molly's head jerked up. "And you can't afford two new machines! Once a man—" She clamped her lips firmly.

"And twice a child!" Garrett chuckled. "Right! I've given this business 20 of my best years, and now I'm going to play a little—and get married, maybe!"

He put the pearls away. The two settled down to work. But there had arisen between them an impalapable barrier of constraint. It lasted until noon, and afterwards until 3 o'clock.

Then Garrett again took out the pasteboard box and locked the drawer. He was once more smiling that boyish, fatuous smile.

"I'm going out." He put on his coat and hat. "If I'm not back by closing time, you can lock up." He slipped the box into his pocket and left.

Three minutes later he reopened the door. "I forgot to say—"

His words trailed off. Molly was bowed over her desk, her face buried in her arms. Apparently she had not heard him. Garrett closed the door very quietly and came closer. He said:

"Molly, I haven't told you yet who I hope to marry."

Molly's shoulders quivered. Then she raised them and her head with a movement of fierce pride. Yet she did not look at him, but stared straight before her, waiting.

The next moment she felt something cool and smooth slide about her neck. Putting up a hand, she felt the pearls. Molly began to tremble silently.

Garrett stepped to his desk, unlocked the drawer and took out the picture, opening its cover, and standing it before her. It was o Molly herself, enlarged from snapshot.

"There she is—Why, Molly," h cried in distress. "Molly, don cry It was just a game, dear. wanted to rouse your interest to try to make you love me!"

"Y-y-ou ne-needn't h-have act idiotic!" Though she spoke quit crossly, Molly's smile was like a rainbow in the clouds. "I've been loving you for years and years silly!"

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Boston Series Gives Bucs Their First Experience on Reduced Field That Has Caused Many Protests—Pittsburgh's High Spot in Soccer—Choynski Overlooked in Ballyhooing of Emanuel.

IN THE series of games opening in Boston tomorrow, the Pirates will have their first experience on the altered playing conditions at Braves Field.

Emil E. Fuchs

From the largest playing area in the majors, Judge Emil E. Fuchs has changed the Hub lot into the joke of the big circuits.

When a concrete athletic stadium was erected at the United States Military Academy in West Point, Fuchs bought the wooden bleachers discarded by the Army and set them up at the Braves' grounds. His object, he admitted, was to create two short fields, so that ordinary fly balls which should be easy "outs" would go over the close fences in front of the bleachers for cheap home runs.

THE arrangement spoiled so many games and brought so many protests that the Brave officials felt impelled to put several feet of wire netting above the low fences.

But this has failed to remedy the situation, according to the Reds, who have just finished a series there.

Cincinnati players and critics say the cheap policy of the Boston club has made ball games at Braves' Field a mere gamble, the conditions being very difficult for pitchers and taking away much of the chance for skillful and scientific play.

AND the Reds are saying this in spite of the fact that they profited by the short fields in winning two of the three games played in the series. Eleven home runs were made in the three contests. Six of them were hoisted into the new seats by the Reds, and the players who made them—Dressen, Critz, Picinich, Donohue, Rixey and Kolp—were credited with a combined total of only six for all of last season.

THEREFORE, the six Reds named made as many homers in three days at Braves Field as they did during 1927. Picinich, Donohue, Rixey and Kolp did not make a single home run last year.

Boston has been a tough spot for the Pirates in recent years, but with games there now reduced to a gamble they will have to fight harder than ever and make their share of the artificial home runs to hold their own with the seventh-placers.

LOVERS of soccer football through Tri-State territory are looking forward eagerly to the big game between the famous Glasgow Rangers, champions of Scotland, and the Western Pennsylvania All-Stars at the Pitt Stadium next Saturday, in anticipation of seeing the greatest exhibition of that sport ever witnessed in this part of the country.

Jock Buchanan

On their American tour up-to-date the Rangers have demonstrated that they represent the last word in soccer class, skill and speed, and every game has been featured by beautiful ball manipulation and all other points of play by Jock Buchanan, Andy Cunningham, Allan Morton, Arthur Archbald, James Fleming and the other stars who make up the powerful team.

THIS team, one of the mightiest in Scotland's history, won all three Scottish honors this season, and has a clear title to the championship. Every player on the year's squad is being carried on the American tour and will appear here Saturday. In physique, the visiting stars are much larger on an average than any opponents they will meet during their six weeks' tour of the United States and Canada, and, with the exception of Allan Norton the diminutive inside left, who is a brilliant star despite his slight stature, they will outweigh American teams 15 pounds per man, besides holding an advantage in height on attack.

SATURDAY'S game here will be the high spot in Pittsburgh soccer history.

The unusual ability of the visitors alone would suffice to make the event a most attractive one, but the contest is likely to bring out the soccer fans in even greater numbers for the reason that the All-Stars, the cream of this district are so strong on their own part that they promise to give the famous tourists a real fight all the way.

ONE of the Eastern fight critics, in commenting on the scheduled second meeting of Mike McTigue and Armand Emanuel, the California ex-national amateur heavyweight champion, who carries Jack Dempsey's label of approval as a heavyweight championship possibility, refers to Emanuel as "a fighter who has gained greater prominence in the heavyweight class than any other Jewish fighter on record."

Joe Choynski

REALLY? If memory serves, there used to be a fairly prominent and capable Jewish battler named Joe Choynski, who, though he weighed only 162 pounds, caused quite a bit of commotion in the heavyweight ranks. In hitting power and more than one other quality Emanuel cannot be compared with the former Pittsburgher.

Here are some of the things that Joe did while he was in the game for two decades, or from 1884 to 1904: Knocked out Jack Johnson in three rounds; fought a 20-round draw with Jim Jeffries; fought other draws with such fairly good men as Bob Fitzsimmons and Tom Sharkey; met Jim Corbett four times; knocked out Peter Maher, Australian Jimmy Ryan, the original George Godfrey and Jim Hall (twice); beat Peter Maher a second time and defeated Denver Ed Smith and Steve O'Donnell twice.

Other men whom Choynski met were Joe Goddard, Dan Creedon, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Gus Ruhlin, Ed Dunkhorst, Marvin Hart, Frank Childs, Kid Carter, Bill Hanrahan and Joe Walcott, the last named defeating him. Joe even was

33-1 SHOT ANNEXES CLASSIC OF TURF

EPSOM, England, June 6.—(AP.)—Duplicating the victory of his sire, Spion Kop, Felstead, a rank outsider, at 33 to 1, captured the historic English derby at Epsom Downs today leading in a field of 19 horses over the famous mile and a half course.

Flamingo, quoted at 9 to 2, was second, a length and a half behind the winner, while Black Watch, quoted at 33 to 1, was third, six lengths behind Flamingo.

It was the one hundred and forty-eighth running of the great English classic and the usual crowd of English racing enthusiasts was on hand at the course, some of the spectators having waited 24 hours for favorable positions.

Thevenow Sought By Rog

BOSTON, June 6.—(AP.)—The Boston Traveler says today that Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Braves, is making overtures to the St. Louis Cardinals for the services of Tommy Thevenow. The Traveler says that Hornsby already has discussed with Manager Bill McKechnie, of the Cardinals, a trade that would bring Thevenow to Boston and that their parley probably will be continued when St. Louis visits this city.

Hornsby Not Out to Lead Batters

BOSTON, June 6.—Rogers Hornsby's ambition is not to grab all the hitting records within reach, but to see the Braves at the head, or near the head, of the National League standing.

Hornsby now leads the National League batting averages by a safe margin of .418, but the Braves leader admitted yesterday he would rather see it go down to .350 if the Braves could be near the top.

"I tell you truthfully my mind and my ambition do not run along the line of batting averages," he said. "What I want to do is to make something out of this ball club."

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

TOMMY MILLIGAN, English middleweight, wins by a knockout in the ninth round of a scheduled 15-round bout with Maxie Rosenbloom of New York, in London. The finish comes from a body blow and Maxie claims a foul and is counted out when the referee disallows the protest.

"I was robbed!" shrieks Rosenbloom.

"He wasn't fouled," declare the examining physician and other officials.

Having seen both men fight, I cannot picture Milligan defeating Rosenbloom, who, while a light hitter, is one of the greatest showmen and ring generals in the sport today, while Milligan is only a mauling fighter who was held to two close fights by Jack Zivic, a light welterweight, and was knocked out by Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion, who would have his hands full with Rosenbloom. Yet I cannot yell "robbery" and am unwilling to do so.

ALMOST invariably when an American fighter of prominence is beaten in England he claims he was jobbed, and the same is true of the English fighters over here. Phil Scott, the heavyweight, is a recent example. He returned home after engaging in several fights over here, for which he was well paid, and told wild tales of having been discriminated against all along the line, when, as a matter of fact, he was lucky to get a second chance after having been knocked out in the first round by Knute Hansen in his American debut.

There is a real reason for these claims of unfair treatment. They are not entirely the products of a fanciful brain. The scoring systems are essentially different in the two countries and a boxer schooled to fight or box for points under one system seldom is able to adapt himself to win under the other. The knockout punch is the only decision

He had been a resident of Chambersburg for 25 years. For some years he was secretary-treasurer of a trust company there. His widow and one daughter survive.

FIRST BOSTON GAME IS CALLED OFF

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, June 6.—The third day of enforced idleness fell to the lot of the Pirates today when rain caused a postponement of the first game of the Pirate-Brave series. The Boston management called the contest off before noon owing to a steady downpour through the night and morning, which put the Braves Field entirely out of condition for play.

The canceled game probably will be staged on the next trip of the Pirates to Boston, the date to be decided this afternoon.

The Bushwhackers reached Boston about 11 o'clock last night. When Brooklyn canceled the last game slated for Ebbets Field, the Pittsburgh athletes boarded the 5 o'clock train for the Hub. When they disembarked here, they were greeted with showers and as they arose this morning the downpour was heavy and consistent. Indeed, the chances for play tomorrow were very doubtful, so wet is the New England district.

The inactivity may take the edge off some of the Pirates, but on the other hand, the rest gives the ailing members of the squad a chance to improve. Carmen Hill was to have pitched today's game and the slab assignment still holds for the first contest whenever it is played.

BRAVES STRONG

The acquisition of Sisler and the subsequent rearrangement of the Boston lineup has caused many baseball followers to give the Braves more than a tumble in the present scramble of the National League.

Starting with Lance Richbourg, one of the best leadoff men in the league, and running right down the Braves' scale up to and including Catcher Zach Taylor, the Boston array does not offer a glaring weak spot.

NOTES of the BOXERS

MATCHMAKER JIM M'GIRR has closed another bout for his open-air show at Cycler Park, McKeesport, next Monday night. It will bring together Allen Beatty, Negro welterweight of McKeesport, and Jack Unglo of Etna in the second preliminary of six rounds. The windup will be between Larry Brignolia of Erie and Joey LaGrey, hard-hitting welters, and the eight-round semi-final will find Charley Brodd of McKeesport and Ray Fay of Charleroi, heavyweights, tossing blows at each other.

Byron Foutts of Midland, manager of Frankie Porto, writes that he gladly will agree to a return bout between Porto and Mickey Hart, as suggested by Mike Harding, manager of Hart, and would like to find a promoter who will put on the pair.

Promoter Jim McGirr calls attention to the fact that it is possible for the Pittsburgh fans to drive by auto to Cycler Park, in the Tube City, in a little more than 20 minutes by way of the Twenty-second street bridge to the South Side and through Hays borough for his open air show next Monday night.

OVAL RACES TODAY

Weather permitting, the first regular matinee club meeting of the season at Schenley Oval will be held this afternoon with five events on the card, including four trotting and one pacing race.

CHILLY SAUCE By CHILLY DOYLE

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, June 6. — The idea of a "Pie Traynor Day" at Forbes Field has been applauded by Pie's mates, not to mention rival players, all of whom have a common admiration for the Pirate captain. Frank Gardner, a New York friend of the Pirates, when he heard of the day for Traynor, made a request of Chairman Rosy Rowswell for five or six banquet seats. Mr. Gardner and his party will journey to Pittsburgh for the event.

VIC ALDRIDGE was pleased when he learned of the honor to be paid Somerville Pie. "They could not do it for a more deserving fellow," said Vic. "I'm glad that Pie is to be honored and that the Giants will be in Pittsburgh at the time."

SPROUT WANER took advantage of the layoff in New York to put on some poundage. Sprout was on hand for every meal with a fine appetite. Maybe the youngster will let off steam with some ringing baseHits today.

THE long ride from New York to Boston gave the players plenty of time for reading and cutting up in their private car. Joe Dawson, the well-known aviator-pitcher, tried to concentrate on a book of aviation articles, but the other players made reading a rather hazardous occupation, what with cushions and newspapers flying about.

THE best "crack" of the journey was made by Burleigh Grimes. "How many of you pitchers are going out to the park tonight to get a look at those short bleachers?" asked Burleigh, as the train neared Boston.

THE second division plight of the Pirates has not dulled the spirit of the players. The team does not have any grouches and the fellow that cannot stand riding is just out of luck.

EARL SMITH rides his own buddies when there are no enemies to be razzed. Earl felt pretty good over his success of getting in and out of New York without running afoul of any of Dave Bancroft's attachments. There seemed to be a feeling that Bancroft might try to do something in Boston, but it isn't likely that Oil will be hampered in the present series.

Team Given More Speed

By TOM BIRKS.

TWO changes in the personnel in the Western Pennsylvania team that is to meet the Glasgow Rangers, Scotia's greatest soccer organization, at the Pitt Stadium Saturday, have been made by the commission. Terry Moran, a speedy inside right from the Pittsburgh Rovers, will be on the reserve list, and Stenzel, Heidelberg's stellar defender, will come into the halfback line in place of Clark.

Stenzel is much faster than Clark and should use that speed to advantage against that wonderful right wing that the champions will flash. Todd Donora's right half back however will have the toughest assignment in taking care of Morton, the greatest outside left in the British Isles.

Morton is very small, wonderfully fast and his crosses will be a revelation to the fans. Fleming, who leads the line for the Rangers has been getting most of the goals in this country. He will be opposed to Zetel, the German Sport Club center halfback.

Zetel is robust and should be able to hold his own with the bustling tactics of the dashing Scottish center forward. Holding Fleming at bay will be Zetel's job for the afternoon.

The Rangers are due in Pittsburgh Friday morning. Mayor Kline will greet the famous team and in the evening a banquet and dance will be held at the Roosevelt Hotel. This dance is being sponsored by the Clan Grant club, the organization backing the game.

Fans must remember that the kickoff is scheduled for 5:30 daylight saving time and the gates will be open around 4:30. It is reported that the advance sale of tickets has been good, but the spacious home of the Pitt Panther will take care of all fans wishing to see the greatest soccer team in the world in action.

DERBY

spectators who massed historic Epsom Downs and it was estimated that an equivalent of at least $15,000,000 was wagered on the race, including the great Calcutta sweepstakes.

PRINCE ELBOWS IN

So great was the crush of spectators that King George and Queen Mary had difficulty in getting to the royal box and had to leave their automobile and make their way through the crowds on foot to the doorway leading to their stand.

The Prince of Wales, who wouldn't miss the derby for a good deal, had to fight his way through the throng with two big bobbies to reach the royal party, while the Duchess of York needed the assistance of the Duke to squeeze through the great jam of people.

It had drizzled during the morning, but cleared up in time for the race.

The tapes were broken three times before the field got away for a good start, except for Royal Crusader, which was left behind.

Flamingo, which was the second choice for the derby, led all the way to Tattenham Corner. Sunny Trace, which also was among the favorites, pressed hard, but at the last quarter Feldstead drew ahead and led the rest of the way, winning fairly easily by a length and a half.

The official time was 2 minutes 34 2-5 seconds equaling the record made last year by Call Boy.

Fairway, owned by Lord Derby and the favorite over the rest of the field, was never up in front during the entire race and did not threaten the leaders.

The 2,500 police on duty at the race course had their hands full controling the crowd.

It was a sunshiny derby and Epsom Downs presented a brilliant panorama despite the early morning rain and gloomy forecasts.

Sir Hugh, owner of the winning horse, struggled among his friends and racing folk who offered him congratulations on winning the coveted classic. A tall, gray haired man in a white top hat and with a flower in his buttonhole, he was the center of an enthusiastic group, to whom he said: "I am happy to have won the race and always hoped to win, but never expected to."

Temperamental British Star To Invade U.S.

LONDON, June 6.—(INS.)—Miss Enid Wilson, 18-year-old English girl, who was strongly fancied to win the British Women's Open Golf championship, plans to go to the United States to compete in the American women's championship, it was learned today.

In that event she is likely to be regarded as the "Betty Nuthall of English golf." Miss Wilson is of Amazonian proportions, standing 5 feet 11 inches and massively built with exceptionally broad shoulders. She drives a longer ball than the average man player, and, when in good form, plays an exceptionally good short game.

It was the greatest surprise of the British championship when the French girl, Mlle. Nanette De Blan, beat Enid in the semi-final. The English girl had been leading up to that time and seemed to have the match in her hands. But, from the tenth to the fourteenth holes she turned scratchy, letting her temperament get the better of her.

One of the faults of her game is that she gets cross and irritable when her play is bad. She is invariably chaperoned by her father, a physician, but will not even allow him to approach the course when things are not going well.

In her spare moments Miss Wilson's hobby is rough carpentry.

Grange, Pyle Split

CHICAGO, June 6.—(INS.)—The famous combination of Harold (Red) Grange and Charles C. (Cash and Carry) Pyle is no more.

The tie-up which began soon after Red quit the University of Illinois gridiron for fame and mostly fortune, ended in New York at the conclusion of Pyle's cross-country bunion derby race, according to information received here.

Red was due in Wheaton, Ill., today to visit friends and relatives. After that he is scheduled to go to California where he will perform before the cameras for the edification of movie fans.

HARRY WILSON SELECTED FOR CITATION AT ARMY

SHARON, Pa., June 6.—Cadet Harry Wilson, Sharon High School graduate, and famous Penn State and Army football star, has been selected for citation at West Point Military Academy where he will be graduated. He will be commissioned as a second lieutenant, with a citation for meritorious work at the academy.

picked for a 4-round exhibition on the coast with John L. Sullivan when the latter was champion.

If there were any whom Joe Choynski overlooked their names do not readily come to mind.

Bob O'Farrell

BOB O'FARRELL did at least one good job before he left the Cardinals and that was to put Flint Rhem in line for a big season. The St. Louis club tried to trade Rhem last winter, but he has been of far greater help to the Redbirds than was considered likely. He has won five games to date and lost only one.

Another pitcher doing notable work is Charley Ruffing of the Boston Americans. In spite of having a second-division team behind him, Ruffing has broken even in 10 games, and three of his defeats were suffered by one run.

Many good judges in the American League believe that both Ruffing and Ed Morris would be real stars on strong teams.

Buc Game Called Off

hit and run men of the circuit. In the third and fourth notches of the order the Braves are fortunate in having Sisler and Hornsby. In the event that Barberton George continues to drive the ball after the fashion shown since he joined the Braves it would not be wrong to say that the Braves, in the third and fourth notches of their batting order, are better cared for than any club in the game, barring the Yankees, who sport the incomparable Babe and Lou combination.

BELL REGAINS STRIDE

Batting in the fifth position for Hornsby is his former teammate at St. Louis, Lester Bell. Bell is a batsman of the slugging type, and now that the Boston officials have made a joke out of their spacious ball lot, Bell is likely to deposit many four-sackers into the left field seats.

Eddie Brown, coming up behind Bell, is a strong fellow, feared by all pitchers. Eddie may have his fielding weaknesses, but few pitchers care to mix with Big Ed with important tallies on the sacks. He is capable of busting up any close game.

Eddie Farrell, Braves' shortstop, needs no more introduction now that he has proved to be a hitter of major league caliber. A whirlwind on defense, Farrell stands up there and gives the ball a good ride. The same might be said of Zach Taylor, who is the Boston first string catcher. Zach gets lots of power in his swing.

The one big uncertainty concerning the Braves is to be found when one gets to the pitching division. This does not refer to the hitting ability of the pitchers, with a view of following up the lineup theme, but rather it deals with hurling abilities of the staff. Hornsby may do a lot of tossing in his sleep on account of his flingers.

TEX TO TEST NEW TAX LAW

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Tex Rickard has announced he will seek a test of the new Federal revenue law, increasing from 10 to 25 per cent the tax on tight tickets or other amusement admissions over $5.

The New York promoter, with an eye to the effect of the new tax law on the price of tickets for his big boxing extravaganzas, including the Tunney-Heeney heavyweight battle this summer, declared he had instructed his lawyers to contest the constitutionality of the new levy, effective June 29, on the ground that it is class legislation and excessive taxation.

JOCKEY INJURED

ST. LOUIS, June 6.—Pete Francis, New Orleans jockey, was injured at Fairmount when his horse, Sleepy Head, fell as it was going into the stretch, ahead of the field. Francis was thrown under the hoofs of the other mounts. An x-ray will be taken to determine the extent of his injuries.

SPEAKING of SPORTS by HARRY KECK SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

that is arrived at in the same manner in both countries—and sometimes even it is debatable, as in the case of Rosenbloom and Milligan.

WHEREVER Pop Warner, dean of football coaches, goes, outstanding attractions follow. When he was at Carlisle Indian School his teams played all of the leading colleges and universities; later, at Pitt, his fame brought stellar attractions the way of the Panthers, and he has kept up the procedure at Leland Stanford. He has figured in a few Tournament of Roses games, including that against Pitt last New Year's Day, and now the fact that he is the coach of the Cardinals has brought about a two-year agreement between the Army of West Point and Stanford, the first game to be played at the Polo Grounds, New York, next December 1, and the second at Palo Alto, Cal., December 28, 1929.

A few months ago an emissary from West Point dropped the hint here that the Army was casting about for a good opponent and that Pitt might be able to land the Cadets for a game in its Stadium in 1929, under a plan whereby the entire Cadet corps would accompany the gridders to Pittsburgh for parade and drill purposes. That would be a spectacle that would be certain to fill the local bowl, the capacity of which has not yet been taxed. So far as is known, no negotiations have yet been entered into for the battle, but it at least is a pleasant thing to know that the Army would look favorably upon a proposition to play a game here.

LITTLE Bill Johnston, at 34, has made good his threat to give up the playing of championship tennis. Pressure of business, that stereotyped reason for almost everything, is given as the cause, but everybody understands that Bill realizes that he is far beyond his peak and should quit while the quitting is good.

Little Bill, with a frail physique, mounted to great heights during his career. He won the National title a few times and was a member of the United States Davis Cup team that brought the team championship bowl from Australia, and then helped to defend it for a number of years.

The sports world always will have a warm spot in its heart for gritty Little Bill Johnston.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE process of weeding out the unfit in the coal industry is under way. Reports of failures among the weaker companies throughout the country are becoming more numerous. The strong companies, on the other hand, are spending freely to modernize their plants and are abandoning workings where costs are too high. Prices of coal at the mines are at lower levels than before the strike started. With slack at $1 a ton and lump selling as low as $1.70 a ton no money is being made in the production of coal. Some operators are not earning their labor costs.

MANY in the coal trade are hopeful of higher prices in August and September. Enormous stocks will be used by that time. Buying for domestic use will be starting. In addition Pittsburgh will start sending more coal to lake ports if the reduction of 20 cents a ton in freight rates scheduled for June 18 goes into effect as planned.

LITTLE change in the strike, which has been hanging on grimly for 14 months, is expected while prices are at the present levels. There is no incentive for idle mines either to sign a wage scale with the union or to attempt to start production on an open shop basis while the return for coal mined is so small.

THE coal industry is learning that it must give consumers a product more suitable to individual requirements than ever before. A year ago the Pittsburgh Coal Company built an air cleaning plant for preparing its coal. This was the first installation of its kind in the Pittsburgh district. Early this year the Pittsburgh Coal Company appropriated $2,000,000 for the construction of three water process cleaning plants. Besides giving consumers a far better fuel than was formerly dumped directly from tipples to cars the numbers of sizes will be greatly increased. The expenditures for cleaning plants follow an improvement program just completed in which the mines themselves were equipped with more modern facilities.

THE Mellon family is becoming an increasingly important factor in the coal business. The Koppers Company which is controlled by the Mellons has been purchasing coal properties during the last year. By-product coke and gas plants being operated by the Koppers Company are using the bulk of the output of these mines. A portion of the output is being sold to other consumers. The Pittsburgh Coal Company has started to act as agent for the Koppers Coal Company for some of its output.

MANY of the operators in this district do not favor the coal bill proposed by officials of the United Mine Workers of America at the conclusion of the Senate investigation of the industry. Several operators when questioned as to their objections admitted that the fact that the bill was of union origin crested the chief unfavorable aspect. This attitude was taken although the bill proposes exempting the coal industry from the provisions of the anti-trust laws, would allow price fixing, favors the industry in other ways, and merely would assure union leaders the right to attempt to organize mines.

THE president of a leading coal company here pointed out that legislation would not necessarily make the path of consolidations easier. He stated that the present trust laws would not restrict consolidations so long as at least two competitors were left in each district. Innumerable attempts to merge coal properties have been made in the last five years. Most of them have failed due to the inability of the owners to come to terms on the price at which mines were to be taken in to the new organization. The law would not overcome this difficulty.

THE industry also fears an unfavorable attitude on the part of the public if the bill should come before Congress for passage. If coal companies should be allowed to agree on prices, the cost of coal to the consumer would be increased. "We are afraid," said one coal man, "that we could not answer the question, 'Why should the public pay to carry the weak sisters of the coal industry any more than the inefficient of any other business?'"

STOCK MARKET JUMPS ONTO SEE-SAW

NEW YORK, June 6.—(AP.)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment characterized today's stock market, with the major activities on the side of rising prices. Prices started upward soon after the opening and then dipped sharply, in what Wall street characterized as a "secondary reaction," some of the losses running from 3 to nearly 6 points. Strong buying support was quickly provided and the market headed upward again in the early afternoon.

Call money again renewed at 6½ per cent, but there was a plentiful supply of funds available at that figure, and a shading of the official rate was reported in the "outside market." Time money and commercial paper rates continued firm. The abundance of money available on call undoubtedly stimulated the afternoon recovery.

Weekly steel trade reviews reported a further slight recession in output, but the seasonal decline has been gradual and a record-breaking production is looked for in the first six months of the year. A further softening of commodity prices carried pig iron quotations to the lowest levels since 1915. Steel shares nevertheless received good support, particularly those engaged in the manufacture of so-called special steels. The weekly statement of the American Petroleum Institute confirmed private reports of a substantial increase in crude oil production last week. Freight car traffic figures showed some improvement, leading to the hope that the returns will shortly begin to show gains over the corresponding weeks of last year.

Bullish demonstrations in the market centered largely in issues in which special developments are reported to be pending. Allied Chemical, American Linseed and Advance Rumely common and preferred all touched new high records on gains of 3 to 5 points. The brisk demand for Western Electric Instrument was in anticipation of increased earnings through the manufacture and sale of airplane instruments. Freeport Texas, Coty, Vanadium Steel, Patino Mines and Producers and Refiners also showed substantial gains.

Radio sold down to 195½ and then rebounded to above 202. Selling pressure was still apparent against the airplane stocks and such recent pool favorites as International Nickel, International Combustion, Frank G. Shattuck and Montgomery-Ward.

ALUMINUM CO. SHAREHOLDERS GET MELON

Directors of the Aluminum Company of America today announced plans for the distribution of a melon to stockholders. Capital stock of the new Aluminum Limited, formed to take over all of the foreign interests of the Aluminum Company of America, will be distributed to stockholders of the parent company. Holders of each three shares of the Aluminum Company stock will receive one share of the stock of Aluminum Limited.

Announcement also was made today of the offering of $20,0000,000 of 5 per cent sinking fund debenture bonds by the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh to finance the new organization. The offering was entirely sold to dealers and books were closed today.

Arthur V. Davis, president of the Aluminum Company of America, has resigned and has been elected chairman of the board of directors. Roy A. Hunt, vice president, was elected president. Edward K. Davis resigned as vice president of the Aluminum Company of America to become president of Aluminum Limited.

STEEL OUTPUT RECEDES

The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say: The trend of steel production still is downward, but the rate of recession is gradual and will not prevent the first half of 1928 from establishing a new six-month record by a margin of several hundred thousand tons. While pig iron output has not been on a proportionate scale, falling considerably short of the volume of recent years, the daily rate in May showed a decline of less than ¾ per cent from that of April.

Price developments are featured by a break in basic pig iron in the Valleys from $16 to $15.37 a ton, the lowest price reached since October, 1915. Most independents have followed the lead of the Carnegie Steel Company in announcing an advance to 1.90c per lb. Pittsburgh, on third quarter contracts in plates, shapes and bars.

Galvanized and black finished sheets have receded to 3.50c and 2.65c per lb., Pittsburgh.

New business in finished steel is light and specifications in many lines are diminishing.

In the Pittsburgh district ingot output is a shade below 75 per cent, against 70 per cent 12 months ago.

The automotive industry continues to specify liberally for bars, sheets and strip steel. Forge shops in the Cleveland district are operating at capacity. The expected decline in specifications from the farm implement industry is slow in materializing. Fabricating awards are light.

Pig iron production in May, as computed from returns to The Iron Age, averaged 105,931 tons a day, compared with 106,183 tons in April. This was the lowest May rate since 1925.

Both of The Iron Age composite prices have declined. That for pig iron, at $17.23, is at the lowest level since late in 1915. Finished steel is 2.341c, against 2.348c last week, and a low for 1928 of 2.314c on January 3.

FLIGHT FEAR IS TOLD

GREATEST AIR ADVENTURE DESCRIBED

tion wonderful and many thanks to Lowell Smith, Maj. Miller and Col. Smoot and Army mechanicians who checked motors and worked all night for us. Finally, before going to sleep, Smith and self decide to have Lowell Smith stand at 3,500-foot mark on runway and we will cut the motors off if not off ground by then.

We will make Suva O. K. and Warner's help on radio will be invaluable. Lyon spent hours with Navy adjusting sextant, and apart from his skill he is our humorist.

Now to bed at 10:30 p. m.

June 3.—Arose at 3 a. m. Breakfasted and motored to Barking Sands. Finally inspect runway and have flags placed at each 500 feet thereon with Lowell Smith standing at 3,500-foot mark. Warm up motors. Don't wear heavy flying suits, as anticipate warm day ahead. All O. K. for start.

At 5:17 a. m., after very difficult take-off, handled well by Smithy, wheels left ground at 5:22 a. m. Take-off distance 340 feet. Revolutions in air at 1,825. Air speed 86 knots.

Bad Off-Shore Bumps

5:26 a. m.—Revolutions 1,800, altitude 100 feet, slowly turning.

5:28 a. m.—Get bad off shore bumps. Plane difficult to handle with such heavy load. Altitude 150.

5:30 a. m.—On earth inductor comes more bad bumps. Smithy and self gleefully shake hands on successful take-off.

5:37 a. m.—Altitude 400 feet, air speed 76 knots. Climbing, but staying low for fuel economy.

5:45 a. m.—Altered course to port to pick up beacon signals earlier.

5:50 a. m.—Warner asks for more altitude that he may let down the long wave aerial. Revolutions now 1,775. Climbing slowly at 76 knots. Clouds ahead, but think can fly safely under them.

5:50 a. m.—Warner reports one generator behaving badly. This is worrying us, as radio was such valuable aid before.

6 a. m.—Well, we are really on the way again now and happy. Altitude 900 and passing under low clouds. Poor visibility.

6:11 a. m.—Picked up radio beacon signals. This very cheering.

6:17 a. m.—Our navigator, Humorist Lyon, sent me message reading:

"Australia, the Southern Cross and Mrs. Lyon's son, Harry, are all saved as I have found my papers."

I didn't know he lost anything. Altitude 625, speed 75 knots. On beacon all O. K.

6:52 a. m.—Making first rough check on fuel consumption, believe better than on Hawaiian hop. Air speed 76 knots. Estimated ground speed 84 knots. Altitude 850. Lyon just passed up souvenir boomerang.

6:55 a. m.—Lyon changed course considerably to starboard, apparently picked up beacon "T" zone. Sent message to Warner to raise weather report, as it looks black ahead.

Fuel Leak Scare

7:01 a. m. Had a scare. Saw what looked like fuel leak in line behind Smithy's head. I flew while Smithy investigated. It proved to be water formed through condensation air around cold fuel pipe.

7:02 a. m.—Warner reports us on beacon "T" zone. We are apparently making excellent ground speed. Loud cheers.

7:30 a. m.—Humorous Lyon: "A periodic compass has snapped out of its trance and now functioning right with earth inductor." Air speed 76 knots, ground speed 84 knots. Altitude 600. Everything O. K.

8:15 a. m.—Just finished my first 40 minutes' turn at controls of this hop. Speed and altitude the same. Very cloudy ahead and above looks like much rain. Water under foot, oil pressures and temperature perfect. Now about to attack larder.

8:17 a. m.—Message from Warner that beacon signals failed at 8:15. This is not so good.

10:05 a. m.—Warner reports that radio receiving equipment completely out of commission. This very worrying, although transmission perfect.

11:10 a. m.—Just finished relieving Smithy one hour at controls. Altitude 600 feet. Air speed 76 knots, revolutions 1,720. We miss radio communication badly. Warner working on same. Wind is freshening up nicely in our favor, but bad weather ahead.

Dodge Rainstorm

11:40 a. m.—Rain storm immediately ahead. We flying around it.

11:45 a. m.—Smithy flew around the rainstorm, I around another. Now they seem to be closing in all around us, so Smithy has controls again. He has just seen a way through and we may miss them. Running into these storms at 600 feet and so heavily loaded is no joke. Here they are again all around us. Have opened up motors and now flying blind and climbing through heavy rain and bumps.

11:50 a. m.—Blind flying and bad bumps, not so good. Out of it now, but more ahead. Visibility now only about 150 feet. Gliding down trying to get under nearest rainstorm.

12 O'Clock Noon—Altitude 600, much clearer ahead. (Please note that all times herein are Honolulu time, 12:30 being noon at ship.) Lyon taking meridian altitude. We will know our latitude position in few minutes. We are now seven hours out from Kauai. Smithy has flown 4½ hours and self 4½ hours. Hope Warner can fix the receiving radio. If it can be done Jim will do it.

12:40 p. m.—'Tis uncomfortably hot here. Smithy and self have removed coat. Just passing very large rain storm. Glad we missed that one.

12:45 p. m. (being 12:20 ship's time)—Lyon reports position latitude by observation 12 degrees, 47 minutes north longitude, by dead reckoning 163 degrees, 13 minutes west. Distance made good 630 nautical miles. Average ground speed 90 knots per hour.

12:50 p. m.—Smithy just flew blind through large rain storm. I'm taking over controls now.

1:15 p. m.—Just flew through another rain storm. We'd miss them if we flew higher probably, but would burn up more fuel. Altitude still 600 feet and fast ground speed comforting.

Motor "Coughing"

3:30 p. m.—Smithy and self been taking hourly turns at controls, both experiencing much rain. Had a scare just as Smithy took over controls from me. The starboard motor started to cough. 'Tis not a fault with the motor, but we are using outboard wing tanks and something apparently wrong with feed line.

3:40—p. m.—Can locate no definite trouble. May be only rain in carburetor-stoves. Anyhow revolutions now normal at 1,600. Oil pressure 59 and starboard motor has now stopped shimmying.

4:22 p. m.—Eleven hours in air today and believe we have averaged 100 statute miles an hour.

4:49 p. m.—Lyon working up longitude position. Altitude 600 speed 70 knots. Revolutions 1,610. Looks like clearing up for fair night ahead. So far Smithy has flown 6 hours and self five hours. He will do most of it tonight if murky.

4:50 p. m.—(Being 4:28 at ship's time)—Lyon reports our position at 4 o'clock ship's time to be 7 degrees 2 minutes north, latitude, and 167 degrees 30 minutes west, longitude. Distance made good 1,020 nautical miles, which gives average speed of 106½ statute miles per hour.

5 p. m.—Revolutions 1,610, speed 78 knots, ground speed estimated 85 knots. Altitude 660 feet, visibility poor now, very hazy, but may clear up. Here's hoping, anyhow.

6:10 p. m.—Have plotted our times ahead and if present conditions continue we should pass over Phoenix group late tonight. Daylight will soon be gone now. Therefore are climbing for night. Flying thick, heavy cloud banks ahead and above us, but I feel we will get over them at 6,000 feet. Altitude now 1,100 feet, speed 69 knots, climbing. Ground speed estimated at 84 knots.

Windshields Leaking

6:15—Now meeting with first rain clouds of any importance and wind shields leaking most uncomfortable. Opened motors to 1,700 revolutions to climb more rapidly. Just swung off course to miss very large rain burst. Smithy now turning back on course as I write this. Getting colder.

6:17 p. m.—Center motor exhaust pipe flexible lead carried away. No damage, but it's blurring windshields. Now, in very heavy rain. Smithy flying blind by instruments in heavy clouds. Climbing 250 feet per minute. Altitude 1,850 feet. God bless these instruments. They are proving worth the financial battle we had to get them.

6:20 p. m.—Still in heavy rain but above first cloud layer. Can see 50 feet ahead O. K. Some of these clouds simply gorgeous.

6:30 p. m.—Hell, this rain is rotten. Reminds Smithy and I of 2,700 miles of rain we encountered on round Australia flight. Only there was ground underneath us then. Smithy and self darned wet through leaking wind shields.

6:50 p. m.—At 5,000 feet we got above worst of rain but had to swing at right angles to course. Still higher clouds in front. Will probably have to make 10,000 feet to get over them. This worries, as we may have to use too much fuel. Altitude now 5,100 feet.

7:03 p. m.—For last 10 minutes been flying in circles, partly blind, to miss clouds. Climbing as fast as we can with this heavy load. Smithy is a champion at this blind flying. Altitude now 6,500 feet.

Race With Clouds

7:15 p. m.—Now 7,500 feet. 'Tis a race between the Southern Cross and clouds as to who reaches 10,000 feet first. Climbing very slowly with heavy load and plane difficult to handle.

7:31 p. m.—Sighted the good old constellation, Southern Cross above port bow. Moon up also. Altitude 8,000, above impenetrable clouds.

7:50 p. m. — Probably lost an hour blind flying in those darned clouds, but back on course now and gliding towards warmer climes. Warner and Lyon visibly worried at our twisting and turning. We were too, but worse for them, being unused to night flying, particularly in such bad weather. It's also worrying because high flying may have seriously depleted our fuel.

8 p. m.—Stars popping out all over heavens, but our group of heavenly bodies, the Southern Cross, looks best of all.

11:32 p. m.—Each of us has had refreshing doze. One really does not sleep when off duty on job like this, but few minutes doze is helpful.

11:33 p. m.—Lyon reports we have crossed the Equator. Well we are in our own hemisphere again. Instrument dash light failed. Will have to use torch if any more blind flying necessary. Hope not. Altitude 1,800 feet. Speed 74 knots. Revolutions 1,590. Misty ahead, but moon and stars now all look o. k.

12 midnight, being 11:10 p. m. ship's time—Should be over Phoenix group soon if on our course. Instructed Lyon to set direct course for Suva, as believe we will have sufficient fuel.

4:45 a. m.—Flew for hour and half. Been dozing since. Will give Smithy another spell now. More darned rain and heavy clouds ahead. Altitude, 1,300, air speed 77 knots.

Coffee Goes Bad

5 a. m.—One thermos bottle of coffee has gone bad. I drank some. Very upsetting. Nearly vomited. We will be thirsty lads before we land. Raining and bumpy. Visibility nil, will take Smithy as blind flying ahead.

5:55 a. m.—Just been through worst period of whole flight. Rain, lightning, bumps, blind flying and another large storm looming ahead. Smithy's handling of ship is clever, dodging in and out between clouds, trying to find way through. It has been a rotten flying night all through, and fear we rapidly exhausting fuel supply.

6:05 a. m.—We dare not fly high any more, as fuel supply alarmingly low. Unless main tank gauge wrong, we cannot make Suva and will have to make forced landing in water. Not so good.

6:10 a. m.—Glided down to 400 feet. Going still lower. Told Warner to wind up antennae, as we may fly few feet from waves to get under clouds and rain. Lyon and Warner just sent notes asking what is trouble and whether fuel will hold out. Wish we could honestly reassure them.

6:12 a. m.—Locked in clouds again. Smithy doing more blind flying. Trying to climb through them and turning circles at 200 feet. This climbing plays the deuce with gas consumption. Somehow I feel confident we'll make it through, anyhow—we've tried.

Smithy Sees Failure

6:30 a. m.—Self flying now. Smithy writes me a note saying that we are out of luck and he sees no chance reaching Suva, as fuel won't last. Personally think we will if we are on right course. Feel confident more fuel in main tank than gauge registered. Anyhow, here's trying.

6:50 a. m.—Estimates about seven to eight hours gas left. More clouds, rain and lightning ahead and abeam both sides. Dawn breaking astern, giving some wonderful color effects on clouds. Altitude 4,500. Speed 70 knots. I still think we'll just make Suva, if no more really high flying is necessary. Lyon's 6 o'clock, ship's time, dead reckoning position, will make us 690 nautical miles from Suva. Hope he's correct.

7:15 a. m.—Oh, what a cheerless dawn. Rain, cold and blind flying at 8,000 feet. This is the worst so far and if it continues we are out of luck. As Smithy says if forced down will wrap this log book in water proof bag and address it to Sydney Sun and San Francisco Examiner. As our American friends would say, Smithy sure "knows his onions" at this blind flying. Took a go at it myself a couple of times and I had enough after 10 minutes or so at a time. Ability to fly blind has saved our necks so far. I'm still confident we'll make it OK. Each hold flashlight on instruments for the other when flying now. Darn nuisance, as it precludes useful rest.

Buck Headwind

7:30 a. m.—Flying plane in glide now while Smith carefully checks fuel consumption. Altitude 8,500. Looks as though we have head wind now to add to our worries. We'll make it o. k. Guess Smithy and I were born to be hung anyhow.

8:30 a. m.—At 500 feet scurrying along through rain and clouds. Have just given Smithy hour's spell. He needed it after gruelling time past few hours bucking head wind. Very bumpy. Lyon passed note saying that he and Warner will have Smithy made president on their return to America for his blind flying last night. Air speed now 77 knots. Fuel left estimated at 275 gallons.

9:30 a. m.—Now very doubtful whether we can make Suva or not, but I still believe we will reach land at outer islands. Started to hand-pump fuel from main tanks. Gauge registers nil, but still coming some. Hopeful. Wing tanks empty. Front tank empty. Have broken fuel lines at connections to make sure no stoppages.

9:50 a. m.—Bucking direct head wind of fair force. Instructed Warner to send out our position regularly on short wave. We may just make it, but nothing to spare. God bless that faulty fuel gauge.

Plenty of Fuel

10:10 a. m.—Whoops of American joy and loud Aussie cheers, for after thoroughly testing fuel system and hand-pumping fuel from main tank, have seven hours fuel left now. We will make it if on course. This is pretty good right now.

10:22 a. m.—Thirty hours in air. Altitude now 800. Speed 75 knots. Revolutions 1,550. Smithy has flown about 17 hours and self about 13 hours and both now pretty tired. We had a gruelling last night, which we won't forget. Have not sighted anything but clouds since leaving Kauai.

11:22 p. m.—Thirty-two hours in air. Altitude 800 feet. Everything lovely ahead. It's about time we soon sighted some land.

1:02 p. m., being 11:30 a. m. ship's time—Shortly after noon ship's time we should know our true latitude from observations and dead reckoning longitude.

Sights Land

How far to Suva. We'll make it now.

1:10 p. m.—Hooray. Self flying and sighted land on starboard bow. Pretty excited and immediately swung ship off course to face land. Smithy was dozing and jumped up saying what "the hell." As I turned plane I pointed excitedly to the island and then Smithy wrote note to inform Lyon and Warner. Gee, this is good.

1:12 p. m.—Island showing up everywhere in front of us. Back on course again.

2:22 p. m.—Thirty-four hours out from Kauai and here we are sailing along at 2,000 feet between the smaller islands of Fiji group. Are we happy? I'll say so. This is one of the proudest moments of my life. And I am sure Smithy's also, from the grin on his face. Years of ambition and hard work realized and making it as scheduled, too. Our only hazard now is the ground at Suva. Will it be large enough. At least we have made the longest non-stop flight over water. The exact point to point distance is 2068 statute miles. We have probably flown 3,500 miles, taking turns and delay in clouds last night.

Let It Rain

2:30 p. m.—Raining again as Koro Island is passed. We should worry now whether it rains anything smaller than paving stones. Will land at Suva at 3:45 p. m., Honolulu time.

3:22 p. m.—Thirty-four hours in air. Smithy has flown for 18½ hours and self for 15½ hours. All o. k.

3:45 p. m.—Only five minutes off Suva now.

3:50 p. m.—Honolulu time—landed Suva and it was hazard. Believe me only 450 yards to land in with no wheel brakes and a slight rise for a few feet at end of runway, then trees. Smithy handled this very cleverly and ground looped the parade just as we reached the rise, swinging her hard around to port between two lone trees and the main group. For a few seconds it looked like a bad crack up and the end of our flight here, but here we are all in one piece and the populace going mad.

Deafened by Motors

This is the end of log book and diary of Southern Cross trans-Pacific flight, second stage. But I doubt very much whether we will be able to take off from this field. The first thing Smithy and I did after the motors were stopped, was to shake hands. At last we have made the grade. Then that first cigaret after 34½ hours was good. We landed stone deaf from roar of motors and all pretty tired. Taken to hotel, bathed, sent rush messages telling of safe landing and to bed.

Hope this message not too long, but it's my best. Regards to all—Ulm.

CHILDREN GIVE TO ICE FUND

The Sun-Tele Milk and Ice Fund, which opened its 1928 campaign yesterday, has received its first contribution. This gift, amounting to $11.78, comes from a group of Woodmont street children who gave an entertainment last Friday to raise money for the poor babies.

"The King and Queen of Holland," a short pageant, was presented outside the home of Mrs. A. L. Mars, who sort of "godmothered" the benefit. The children who took part were Eleanor Mars, Evelyn Blustona, Marian Campbell, Slyvia Cohen, Phyllis Wechsler, Ruth Kamin, Buddy Mars, Alfred Spitz, Harold Cohen and Milton Esman.

STREET BUS STANDS HIT

Taxicab companies and bus lines should provide private terminals, Traffic Inspector Benjamin R. Marshall has suggested to Council. Only by abolishing the street parking facilities now given such machines can the traffic lanes be kept clear for other vehicles, he said. His stand was supported by Councilmen James M. Malone and P. J. McArdle, although Councilman Daniel Winters said legislation that would drive busses from the streets of Pittsburgh would make this a "hick town."

Today's Puzzle—How long is a short circuit?

SAD STORY OF THE RETURNING BANKER

Recently I heard a sad story, or at least what I thought was sad. Here it is:

A noted banker was returning from New York to his native home after an absence of eight years. Upon alighting from the train he was somewhat downcast to notice that there was none of his old friends to meet him. Remembering the station master, who had been a friend since childhood, he hurried in to greet him. Just as he was about to speak, the station master said: "Hello, John, going some place?"

Assessed for Fun

"Does it amuse you to strike your wife?"

"Yes, yer washup."

"Very well, then. Fined 11 shillings and sixpence."

News That Has Been Buried

But NOT in the Hearst Newspapers

Every day, for weeks, big and important news has been "breaking" in the hearings of the Federal Trade Commission at Washington—and the Nation's Washington correspondent says that the newspapers of this country have been either too weak, too timid, or too wicked to tell their readers the story.

The story is a vicious and terrible one. It is the complete and verified account of how far the Power Trust has gone in its attempts, too often successful, to corrupt the press and the schools of America with its propaganda for private ownership of public utilities.

The Nation's correspondent is quite properly indignant that such really worthwhile news should be kept from the people of the United States. That is what he writes and the Nation published it in its issue of May 16:

"Most of the poor innocents who rely upon the daily papers for their knowledge of events in Washington will be surprised to learn that the Federal Trade Commission during the last two weeks has been the scene of the most startling news since the original Teapot Dome disclosures. Indeed, in scope and significance, this makes the oil scandals seem tame. Despite all the high-powered and high-priced efforts to suppress them, the facts about the power trust and its enormous lobby are being divulged, and only the feebleness or venality of the newspapers has kept the public in ignorance of them. Aside from all other consideration, it breaks my reporter's heart to see such a sizzling story going to waste.

"What a surfeit of material! A textbook used in 70 Connecticut high schools is proved to have been written by a paid propagandist of the public-utility companies. Vast sums have been collected and expended to influence state legislatures. Propaganda on a war-time scale is carried on. The main object of this huge expenditure of money and energy is to 'educate' the public against government ownership of public utilities. The most sinister aspect of it is the deliberate debauchery of the public schools. Not one college professor, but a whole regiment, are discovered as the recipients of money from power interests desiring to introduce their propaganda into the courses of study. Not even high school girls and boys have been exempt. Lessons, lectures, text books and teachers have been corrupted on an incredible scale. Here is corruption with a vengeance! No mere bribing of a cabinet officer, this, but a vast, deliberate and comprehensive scheme to prostitute the whole process of education for the purpose of influencing the immature minds of the next generation of citizens! Yet the Washington correspondents employ their time in writing silly speculative babble about the presidential primaries, and their editors devote uncounted columns to the opening of the baseball season!"

Yes, SOME Washington reporters, SOME editors—"under instructions"—have been doing that while the most astounding news story of the year has been "breaking" all around them. But while the Washington correspondent of the Nation knows all about this power propaganda, he does not seem to know that the Hearst Washington correspondents have been taking down EVERY detail of the evidence before the Federal Trade Commission and sending it on the wire to the Hearst newspaper editors, who have PRINTED IT for the benefit of their 20,000,000 readers.

Some other newspapers in this country, in this city, have printed slight editorial comment on the power trust hearings or inadequate news stories, but the Hearst newspapers have printed ALL of the story and will continue to do so. They have told about the purchased professors, the trained writers jumping through hoops for the power trust, the textbooks that have been written and forced into economics and civics courses. The American people have been able to read in the Hearst newspapers what has been largely withheld from them elsewhere.

This is news that every American citizen should know. The Power Trust fought to prevent the present investigation of its activities. It fought Senate hearings and fought the Trade Commission hearings. Failing in that, it has succeeded in keeping the news from SOME newspaper readers—but NOT FROM TWENTY MILLION OF THEM. For the Hearst papers that news did not die at birth.

The Nation is just as expert at suppressing facts as any of the newspapers which it criticises for suppressing the facts in relation to the Power Trust expose. The editor of the Nation knows perfectly well that the Hearst papers did not suppress any facts but for weeks have been publishing full accounts of the Trade Commission's investigation of the Power Trust. The editor of the Nation was quite as cowardly, quite as prejudiced, and perhaps not any more honest than the editors he criticises in suppressing truth which he did not wish to print. The only difference is that we expect higher standards and better ethics from the newspaper editors of the country generally and do not expect anything admirable from Mr. Oswald Villard.

Jokes $50,000,000 Each

What We Really Need

Our Army and Navy are to have their greatest war tests. Manoeuvers in Long Island Sound, out in the Pacific as far as the Philippines, and along the shore line of coast defense guns, will show what a great fighting nation we are.

Meanwhile, if REAL war came, flying machines, released from great carriers, out of sight of our coasts, would fly over the SOUND, or over the PACIFIC, and over our foolish COAST DEFENSE GUNS and blow up our cities.

Our battleships are expensive jokes, costing $50,000,000 each. What the country needs, and hasn't got, is the world's best fighting AIR FLEET.

Where's That Gas NOW?

Could It Explode and Poison US?

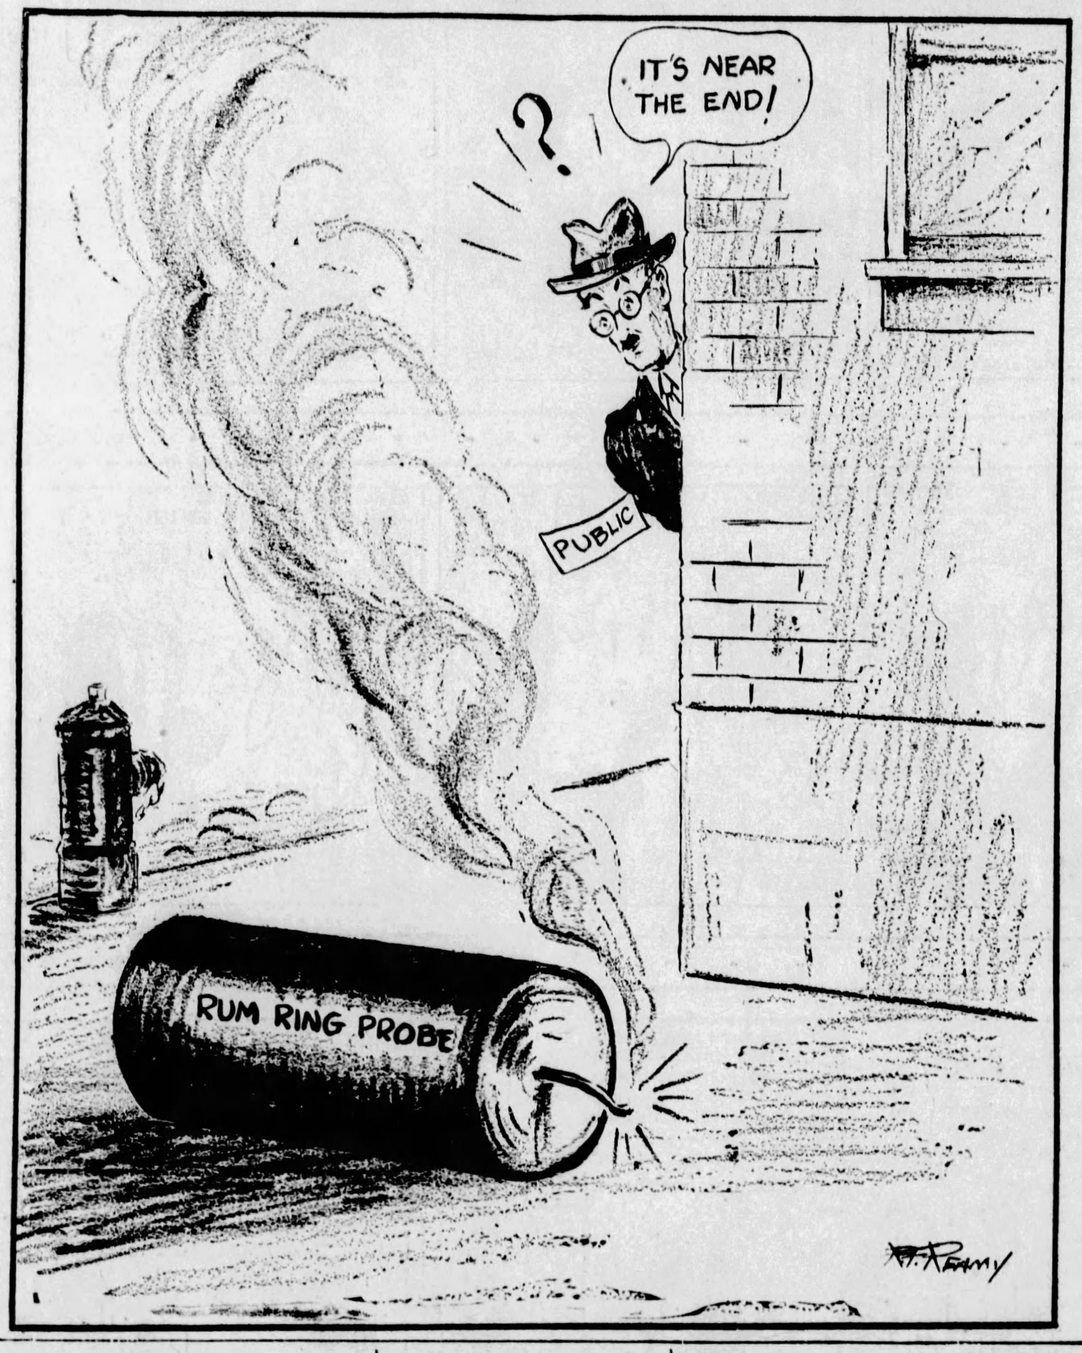
The owner of the phosgene gas that exploded in Hamburg, killing many, gives names of Americans that have bought, and presumably IMPORTED, 55 tons of the deadly gas.

As it kills all those with whom it comes in contact, the American public would like to know what BECAME of the 55 tons, on what boat it was transported, what care was taken in hauling it through city streets and where it is NOW.

The Government also is interested, presumably.

What do you do with phosgene gas? Why are 55 tons of it needed? Did our Government buy it through third parties, by any chance, in case of international trouble? If so, O. K.

WAITING FOR THINGS TO HAPPEN



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

New Light on Mars

THE opinion is rapidly gaining among astronomers that Mars is a world of life. Nobody is found now deriding the belief so long championed by the late Percival Lowell on that subject. To be sure his imaginary picture of Martian inhabitants of marvellous intelligence and unparalleled engineering power transforming the face of the planet with gigantic systems of irrigating canals supplied from the melting polar snows as the seasons flit alternately northward and southward, is still not taken seriously, but the fundamental idea that Mars bears living things upon its surface has at last found standing room and respectful treatment in the halls of official science.

The result is what ought to have been reached long ago, viz., a more systematic and persistent application of the powerful new weapons of astronomical investigation to questions concerning the nearest to us of all the celestial bodies—nearest in more senses than that of simple propinquity—the planets of our solar system, brothers and sisters of the earth in the great isolated family whose head and parent is known as the sun. The earth derives its chief interest from the fact that there is life upon it. Then what more interesting problem can there be for astronomy to deal with than of the existence or non-existence of life on those other nearby and related worlds?

A new method of investigation has proved to be very effective in the study of the atmospheric conditions on Mars. This consists in the use of infra-red and ultra-violet photography; i. e., photographing in the one case with light-waves beyond the red end of the spectrum and in the other case with those beyond the violet end. The result is something like what is achieved in photographing the sun with the spectroheliograph, which selects out of the whole radiation of the sun the particular wave lengths that it is desired to use in making a picture of the solar disk.

Dr. W. H. Wright, of the Lick Observatory, lately presented to the National Academy of Science a summary of what this new method has achieved in its applications to Mars. The infra-red photographs show the surface of the planet, marked with dark streaks and other markings, not identical, however, with the so-called canals revealed by photographs taken in ordinary light. But the ultra-violet pictures give an entirely different view, which evidently represents the atmosphere of Mars at an elevation as high as 15,000 feet above its surface. In these pictures the white polar caps are seen shining through, together with brightly illuminated regions, probably white clouds, but there are also blurred masses which fog the surface below, and the precise nature of which is unknown. They are apparently of different composition from the vaporous clouds in our air.

In the infra-red photographs, on the other hand, yellowish patches have been seen, which being clearly in motion across the face of the planet were taken to be clouds of some kind. Dr. Wright is quoted as being of the opinion that these objects are "low-hanging clouds of water vapor, resembling our own clouds, and appearing yellow because of the gases in the atmosphere of Mars acting as a yellow screen." This, it is assumed, would serve to explain the yellowish color of Mars as ordinarily seen. Changes in the markings shown by the infra-red pictures may, it is admitted, be due to vegetation.

Other evidence has been obtained showing that temperature conditions which in themselves would be tolerable to animal life, as we know it on the earth, prevail on Mars, notwithstanding its relatively great distance from the sun—140,000,000 miles, against 93,000,000 for the earth. We have to judge these things by the limiting conditions of life on the earth simply because we know no other life. But we don't know everything.

What's the Score?

EVERY new home run that bounds from the Babe's formidable bat is an inspiration to the youth of the land.

For it reminds them that a hero who once slipped can come back.

In millions of homes every night the day's scores are eagerly awaited because young America wants to know if Ruth scored another.

And when the broadcaster says he did, what a cheer goes up!

It is most gratifying that the King of Swat is living up to his responsibility. But it is even more consoling to know that we have a national game which remains so rich in benefit and so clean.

Once Overs

Useless "Yes" Man

BECAUSE you want to be popular you have become one of the "yes" men.

And if you have followed this course through life, perhaps you are beginning to realize that your opinion is no longer sought on important matters.

You don't like to think, so you agree with those you wish to impress or you follow the majority, rather than make the extra effort it requires to form a practical, sound opinion of your own.

Can you bring to mind a single man who has been a success who has not had opinions of his own and was not afraid to express them?

When circumstances demand your ideas, be ready with them.

If you have not advanced as you should it may be that your employer feels that you are too prone to agree with him.

The right kind of employer wants a man who has ideas that are helpful.

He wants a man who will do as directed, of course.

But also he wants a man who has an honest opinion and who will give it to him when asked in the interests of business.

The "yes" man is of no special help to him when he needs advice.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Love's Analysis

SOME loved her for her beauty,
Some loved her for her grace;
And I? For just an elfin light
That sometimes touched her face!

Life dowered her with riches,
With pride and high estate,
And to the worldly minds she knew
These gifts were things of weight.

Some loved her for her laughter,
Its tinkling bells of mirth;
And I? Ah, when have wistful moods
Been held of any worth?

I loved her for a sigh, a dream,
Such fleeting things as this,
For reason has no part to play
In love's analysis.

Tales that are Told

Cured Him

MRS. RAVENYELP said to her husband: "I have an odd record here, and I want to see if you can guess what it is."

When a weird succession of sounds began to come from the instrument Ravenyelp knitted his brows and tried to identify the sounds.

"It's a saw cutting through a knot," he ventured.

"Guess again," said Mrs. Ravenyelp.

"A trombone in pain."

"No."

"An owl with its toes in a trap."

Mrs. Ravenyelp shook her head.

"Give it up," said Ravenyelp.

"I agree that it's as bad as all you have named," Mrs. Ravenyelp remarked, "and hope it will have a lot of argument in the future."

"But what is it?"

"It's a record I made in the bedroom the other night to prove that you really do snore, and to let you know how awful it sounds."

Wasted Eloquence

THE mother of the child who had been bitten by Mrs. Green's terrier knocked loudly on her new neighbor's door.

The door was opened by a meek-looking elderly woman, and the mother's wrath burst forth.

"You're Mrs. Green, I s'pose?" she sneered. "Green by name an' green by nature, I should call you, to keep a animal like that there territorial o' yours, bitin' of innercent children an' terrierizing the whole neighborhood! I'll have the law of you! I'll make you pay! D'you hear? I'll sue you for damages, and 'ave that 'orrible dog shot by act of parlyment, I will!"

Then, as she paused for breath, the other woman took a slate and pencil, and said, in a mildly-apologetic tone:

"Very sorry, mum; but would you mind writin' it all down? I'm as deaf as a post!"—London Tit-Bits.

Wife's Evening Off

COPERSCOPE had arrived home tired and hungry and there was not the faintest sign of any dinner. Presently he surprised his wife reading a novel in the living room.

"Do you mean to say that dinner isn't ready?" he asked, with dangerous calm. "Very well, I'm going back to town to dine at the Criterion!"

"Just wait five minutes," replied his wife, throwing aside her book.

"Will it be ready then?" he queried hopefully.

"No," was the cheerful answer. "But I'll go along with you."

Overlooked

MR. DAUBER, an eminent artist, working beside a picturesque country farm, was being worried by the persistent attentions of a small fox terrier, and finally in a moment of unrestrained passion he seized the animal and dipped its hindquarters in a pot of vividly colored paint.

Soon after the owner of the dog appeared.

"What's the meaning of this?" he shrieked.

"The brute sprang at me," returned the artist calmly, "and I stopped him with this,"—holding up a brush.

"Sprang at you!" snorted the other. "Sprang at you! What—tail first?"

No Age Limit

THE prospective tenant had inspected the apartment and expressed himself satisfied.

"Have you any children?" asked the janitor.

"I have."

"Then you can't have the rooms."

"But you don't understand. My youngest child is 30 years old, married and keeps house."

"That makes no difference," said the janitor. "I have orders not to let this apartment to anyone with children!"

Liberty of speech inviteth and provoketh liberty to be used again, and so bringeth much to a man's knowledge. —Bacon.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 6.—Twentieth century progress seems to have vanished the last of Manhattan's aristocrats. Their homes have come down in a rush to make way for topless towers, and they have scattered to nobody seems to know where.

They held fast to old customs and never gave in to the new. The Gotham of jazz, flappers, night clubs and other tinseled fol-de-rol was unknown to them. They were as much sticklers for convention as thoroughbred British officers who dress for dinner in the loneliness of the African veldt.

The older men clung to shoulder capes, square-crowned derbies, lawn string ties and gold-knobbed canes. The ladies were frail and fainty bits of lavender and old lace who had the vicar for tea every week. And drove in the park every afternoon in four-wheelers, shading their faces with little black parasols.

Servants were loyal old has-beens whose uniforms turned green from years, but whose shabby gentility bespoke a devotion this generation does not know. Some had not received a penny of salary for years. Nor did they expect to.

The vanished aristocrats lived in the gloomy, decaying old brownstone fronts behind whose murky windows many ancestors died of port or sat nursing gout. Neighbors knew them only as tottering and shadowy figures who slipped wraith-like across the sidewalk to closed carriages.

A thin light might be seen for an hour after dark in the hallway, but after that the homes were dark, silent and desolate. There were invariable pantomimes like the monthly call of the family lawyer with his ponderous brief case and the grave family council in the front parlor.

Time brought a touching dignity not only to the ancient homes, but to the occupants. Their attitude toward hoi polloi was that of fishy-eyed indifference, but aroused no resentment. They were spectrals of a glorious past—the last of the aristocrats.

Jewelry houses used to be victimized by crooks who ordered rare gems sent to their hotels on consignment. This often resulted in a whiff of chloroform and a getaway. Heavy consignments are now dispatched by three messengers—one to accompany the messenger into the room, another to stand outside the door and the third to stand on guard in the lobby.

The guards who stand in spacious and lofty bank foyers these days are as formidable looking as the Fifth avenue traffic cops. They used to be garrulous old fellows with white mustaches, but today they are young, trim and athletic looking. The one in the orphan check department of my bank—where most of my business is transacted—is a crack athlete three years out of college. He tells me two of his fellow guards are expert boxers.

Comedy of errors which might have had serious consequences took place in a certain hotel last week. It was the result of a mistake of an elevator boy and an unlatched door. A gentleman arriving late was accidentally let off one floor below that where his apartment is. He undressed hurriedly in the bath room so as not to disturb his wife. After getting into his pajamas he tiptoed to their joint bed room and whispered: "Are you asleep, dear?" As there was no answer he assumed she was and slipped into his twin bed. The next morning he was awakened by a scream. A strange lady was yodeling for help. It developed her husband was out of town. She had not heard the stranger enter her apartment. Had she not unintentionally left her door unlatched it would not have happened. It took some time to untangle the affair—including tall expaining to the interloper's wife, who had slept innocently through it all in the apartment overhead.

A Boy's Hero

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

We cannot change what heredity we have given our boys, but we can do something in regard to their environment and in regard to the ideals which we shall hold up before them.

Who ought to be the heroes held up for boys today? What men are capable of inspiring them to the right kind of effort?

Of course, there is Thomas Edison, whose grand career is being rounded out with honors and appreciation. He fought his way from the ground up and justly deserves whatever fame he has or shall have. Few men have benefited the human race more than Thomas Edison.

Then there is Lindbergh, the man who not only conquered the skies, but has shown even greater qualities in the conquest of himself. In all his adulation and prominence he seems to have escaped the bug of egotism which infests the brains of most successful men and ruins them.

But it seems to me that the man who is best qualified to be the hero of the boy today is a man by the name of Mulholland, a California engineer.

Some time ago a dam north of Los Angeles broke. It gave way before the pressure of the waters and the valley below was inundated. Many lives were lost and much property was destroyed.

There was an investigation and the usual talk about finding the person who was responsible for this dam's giving way.

The builder of the dam, William Mulholland, an old man, who had built many dams and dug many ditches at the time of this investigation, stepped forward and said: "If anybody is responsible for this dam's giving way it is I. I am to blame."

Nobody believed that it was through the criminal negligence of Mulholland that the dam gave way. He did the best he could in constructing it. But there was an error somewhere. Instead of dodging the responsibility of trying to shift it to somebody else or to Providence, he came out squarely and assumed the responsibility.

That is the kind of playing the man that this country needs. There is too much dodging and evading. We need men that can make mistakes nobly and are not afraid to say: "Possibly I have erred and I am ready to take my medicine."

No act of Mulholland's life, and it has been crowded with significant incidents, is more worthy of emulation by the youth of the land than his willingness to accept the blame for that which was not in all probability any fault of his.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

HELEN JANE'S entry into Broadway theatricals was a success. She has talent and a father who had discovered oil at the bottom of the old well on the farm in Oklahoma.

She is playing an ingenue part in a musical show and doing well at it, despite the curse of riches.

It used to be that the stage mother had her work cut out for her, maintaining the poise, dignity et cetera, of daughter. Daughters, all except Elsie Janis, were considered a good deal of a care. Helen Jane had reversed the stage mother's responsibilities and her chief task in New York was to look out for the parent from the roaring oil fields.

There used to be a line in the tinkel-tinkel shows about the well-oiled man, but no matter . . .

Came Memorial Day with the big town in bunting and the populace bent on holiday. New York celebrated the glad event in a variety of ways. Some staid citizens by marching in parades, some by reading newspaper reports of President Coolidge's Gettysburg address. Among the latter group was Helen Jane's papa.

Helen Jane's papa read reports of Mr. Coolidge's Gettysburg address partly because he was interested in Gettysburg and partly because Helen Jane had stolen his belt and garters.

Helen Jane's papa—we hate to comment on it—had believed what he read in the papers about bootlegging in New York. Lacking the portions of equipment removed from his wardrobe by Helen Jane on her way to the theater, he was unable to leave Mr. Coolidge's Gettysburg address long enough to make a personal investigation. It was apparent Helen Jane's papa would be home—and in a calm frame of mind—when Helen Jane should return.

Unfortunately, when she took the belt and garters, Helen Jane neglected to take the telephone, also.

Papa found a telephone number and soon there arrived somebody with what was purported to be non-poisonous. After a little while Helen Jane's papa ceased to have any inhibitions regarding belts and garters. He went to a night club, holding himself together with one hand.

The night club closed. Helen Jane came home. She was overset one pair of garters. And papa, where was he?

Came the dawn.

A startled grave digger in Woodlawn Cemetery came upon two figures weeping over a tombstone.

"What the what?" inquired the grave digger.

"We have come to put flowers on this lady's father's grave," replied Helen Jane's papa, for it was indeed he. "I know we are early but this is the hat-check lady in a prominent night club and she couldn't make better time. We have a right here ahead of visitors because the hat-check lady has a family lot here. You will be able to verify this if you consult your books."

"What is your name?" inquired the grave digger of the hat-check lady.

"How do you expect me to remember that at this time of night?" replied the hat-check lady.
